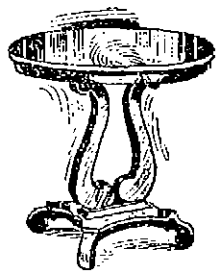
Beautifully Grained Mahogany

"The King of All Woods."

A generation may come and go yet mahogany of real worth will still remain steadfast and true.



Good mahogany like old friends and old wine improves with the speeding years. But it must be good

DECORATIVE YET STRONG.

The three words above well express the virtues of the 30 by 22 foot top mahogany table we illustrate. Note the purity of its strong Colonial lines and width of base.

The top is unusually large yet carries out with fidelity the entire decorative design. The special and low Titus price will doubtless surprise you. $11.25

English Papers Challenge Propriety of Criticism.

Conservatives Defend Roosevelt, Liberals Oppose.

LONDON, June 1.—Mr. Roosevelt's speech at Guild Hall yesterday continued today to be the sensation of the newspapers throughout the country. The editorial comments on his startling utterances concerning British rule in Egypt were influenced, as a rule, by partisanship. The Conservative press defends the conclusions drawn by the American statesman, while the liberal papers oppose his deductions with equal seriousness. Outside the questions of fact set forth, however, the newspapers almost without exception challenge the propriety of a foreign guest of the city criticising the colonial policy of the empire. Of the comments of the Conservative press the following are samples:

The Globe: "It was not the time nor the place, nor was the ex-President the person, to display this particular form of interest in the business of his hosts."

The Pall Mall Gazette: "The unconventional is justified only by success. If he prefers realities to the proprieties where vital interests are concerned, so does the judgment of the British people."

The Standard: "That he should lay hands on one of the nation's private and particular political subjects seems a social crime not far from sacrilege, but in reading the speech carefully there is found nothing of which to complain."

The Star: "Mr. Roosevelt should learn that he is not exempt from the customs of civilized nations."

The Westminster Gazette (Liberal) questions the necessity and disagrees with the conclusions of the speech.

The Graphic: "We can only hope that some of the seathontialists will read Mr. Roosevelt's speech with care and lay to heart its rugged truths."

The Daily News: "We think Mr. Roosevelt's views are open to very serious question."

Mr. Roosevelt passed today quietly. He visited the National Gallery during the forenoon, and had luncheon with several men prominent in the Irish Nationalist party. The former President will be a guest over night at the country home of Frederick C. Selouss.

There were 16 leading Nationalists at the luncheon, and Mr. Roosevelt had an intimate discussion of Irish affairs with them. Only two speeches were made, one of welcome by John Redmond and the other a humorous reply by the former President.

Before his departure from London Mr. Roosevelt will be entertained by King George. On this occasion His Majesty will receive his guest not in the capacity of a special ambassador to the funeral of the late King Edward, but as a distinguished visitor.

WILL NOT QUASH THE INDICTMENT.

Judge Overrules Motion in Illinois Bribery Case.

Lee O'Neill Browne Must Stand Trial, to Begin June 6.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Lee O'Neil Browne, leader of the Democratic minority in the lower house at Springfield, must stand trial on the charge of bribing State Representative Charles A. White to vote for William Lorimer for United States Senator. This was assured today, when Judge McSurely overruled the motion of the defense to quash the indictment against Browne. W. S. Forrest, for the defendant, entered an exception to the ruling. The court set June 6 as the date for beginning the trial.

While this argument was on State's Attorney Wayman demanded that Browne be arraigned at once. Mr. Forrest interposed sharply: "Mr. Browne pleads not guilty."

The argument of the defense was that bribery of legislators voting to elect a United States Senator is not an offense against the state, but against the federal government, and the federal law provides no punishment. Judge McSurely said he believed it to be a plea unique in the history of the courts, but declared that members of the legislature when electing a United States Senator "are no more officers or agents of the United States than are Presidential electors when acting as electors of the President and Vice President, or the people of the state when acting as electors of Representatives in Congress."

On the point raised by the defense attacking the jurisdiction of the Cook county court, declaring that a promise to pay money for a vote constitutes bribery, and not the actual paying of the money, the court declared that the payment of money for a vote constitutes bribery. In the case at bar it is alleged that Lee O'Neil Browne promised to pay Representative White $1,000 to vote for William Lorimer for Senator, and that $850 of this sum was subsequently given to White in Chicago. This rule is without prejudice to the jurisdiction of the Sangamon county (Springfield) courts "over certain phases of this or any similar transaction, if there be such."

FAVORABLY REPORTED.

Senator Lorimer's Resolution Asking for Investigation.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Senator Lorimer's resolution asking for an investigation of reported bribery in his election, which was presented by him at the close of his speech in the Senate last Saturday, was today reported favorably from the Senate committee on contingent expenses. The resolution then was referred to the privileges and elections committee, of which Senator Burrows is chairman.

MEAD RESIGNS FROM BOARD.

Rumor That Southwick Will Also Leave Fish Commissioners.

PROVIDENCE, June 1.—The new lobster legislation, which provides that the state shall buy from the lobstermen all egg lobsters, was the cause of a second resignation from the state board of inland fish commissioners today, when Albert Davis Mead, professor of biology at Brown University, and a recognized authority on lobster culture, withdrew. A short time ago Henry T. Root, who was chairman of the commission for many years, resigned, and it was reported today that a third member, J. M. K. Southwick of Newport, is soon to leave.

Professor Mead is said to have been the first man in the world to discover a practical method for the artificial propagation of the lobster. About two years ago he was awarded a gold medal by the International fisheries congress at Washington for his paper on this subject, and a number of the delegates to the congress from this and several foreign countries came here to inspect the plant.

INCOME TAX AMENDMENT.

Official Notification of State Assembly's Action Sent to Knox.

PROVIDENCE, June 1.—Governor Aram J. Pothier today forwarded to Secretary of State Knox the official notification of the state Assembly's action on the proposed income tax amendment. The state declared itself opposed to the amendment when it was repudiated by the Assembly April 29 last.

PROVIDENCE, June 1.—Rev. John T. Lowe of La Crosse, Wis., has accepted a call to the pastorate of the Church of the Mediator (Universalist) in this city. Mr. Lowe, who is a native of Watertown, N. Y., will begin his new duties in September.

FINAL VOTE ON BILL MAY BE NEAR

La Follette's Amendment to Railroad Measure Lost.

Other Changes Adopted or Defeated by Senate's Action.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Senator La Follette's amendment to the administration railroad bill, to provide for the ascertainment of the physical valuation of the property of railroads engaged in interstate commerce, was defeated in the Senate today by a vote of 26 to 30. It was expected that the disposition of this amendment would permit a final vote on the bill before adjournment today. The 30 votes against the provision were cast by Republicans. Of the 26 affirmative votes, 15 were cast by Democrats and 10 by Republicans.

The defeat of the La Follette provision was followed by the presentation of one by Senator Simmons requiring a physical valuation of the property involved in cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission. The Simmons amendment was defeated by a vote of 28 to 30.

Senator Bailey presented an amendment designed to make effective the "commodities clause" provision of the Hepburn rate law. The amendment would correct, he believes, the defect in the "commodities clause" amendment which was pointed out by the Supreme Court of the United States in the decision which suspended its operation.

The Senate adopted an amendment to the bill by Mr. Simmons, prohibiting the Interstate Commerce Commission from granting a lower charge for a long than a short haul when made to destroy water competition.

The Burton amendment to the bill, to authorize the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix the minimum rates which may be charged by railroads which compete with water routes, was adopted by the Senate 53 to 1, the negative vote being cast by Senator Frye.

PROCESSES TO BE SERVED.

Restraining Order on Railroads Certified to in St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 1.—The temporary restraining order which federal Judge Dyer issued last night at Hannibal, Mo., prohibiting 25 railroads from advancing freight rates was certified to in the United States circuit court here this morning. Processes against the defendants were prepared and will be served by United States marshals in the districts where the different railroads have their general offices. Under orders of Attorney General Wickersham, an expediting certificate, providing for a speedy determination of the issues, was filed. A copy of the expediting order was mailed this morning to Circuit Judges Cook, Sanborn, Vandeventer and Adams.

RATES POSTPONED TO JULY 25.

Proposed Railway Change Was Flat Advance of Ten Cents a Ton.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Rates on coal from Illinois and Indiana mines in Chicago and to points basing on Chicago, which were to be effective today, have been postponed until July 25. The change proposed in the rates was a flat advance of ten cents a ton.

SIGNED IN MARK TWAIN HOTEL.

Judge Dyer Temporarily Enjoined Western Roads in His Room.

HANNIBAL, Mo., June 1.—The "chambers" in which Judge D. P. Dyer of the United States circuit court last night granted the temporary restraining order against the 25 Western railroads to prevent them from increasing freight rates today was a room in the historic Mark Twain hotel. Judge Dyer was presiding at a session of the United States district court when he received a long distance telephone message from Frederick N. Judson of St. Louis that the latter had urgent business to transact. When Judge Dyer reached the hotel on adjournment of court he immediately went to his room. Mr. Judson and Edwin P. Grosvenor of Washington, special attorney from the Department of Justice, arrived here about 6:30 o'clock. They were met at the train and escorted to the hotel, where a few minutes later Judge Dyer received them in his room and affixed his signature to the restraining order.

Mr. Judson, during the Roosevelt administration, was engaged with Judson Harmon, now governor of Ohio, in an investigation of Western railroad conditions.

NO JOINT AGREEMENT.

Hosmer Explains Way Western Railroads Formulated Tariffs.

CHICAGO, June 1.—Explaining the manner of formulating tariffs and the proposed increase of rates on Western railroads, W. H. Hosmer, chairman of the Western Trunk Line committee, says: "I do not know how the railroads arrived at their conclusion to increase the commodity rates. I was not, as has been stated, the chairman of the committee to go through the commodities and make a list of them, together with the rates, and recommend such increases as were thought just. When the matter reached me it came in the form of individual instructions by the various roads interested, to file for each a tariff in Washington which should provide for the increase in the rates contained in the notice given me. So far as I know, there was no joint agreement with respect to the matter."

JUNE SALE —OF— MUSLIN UNDER-WEAR

Quality is the Keynote of Value at this Undermuslin Sale.

Merchandise without quality no matter how cheaply sold, cannot possess real intrinsic value. A comparison of the garments involved in this sale with the usual sale offering strikingly illustrates our ideas of the fundamental principle of honest merchandising.

We stress quality because quality of the highest order distinguishes every garment offered at this sale. Price lowness is part and parcel to every offering.

We purchased great stock of beautiful Lingerie at sacrificing prices from producers of the finest Undermuslins—hence the choiceness of these garments.

Now is your opportunity to own the daintiest and lightest quality Undermuslins at most moderate cost.

GOWNS from 50c to $2.75 each.

The HESS-LEYS CO

RAILROADS RESTRAINED.

Accused by Government of Violating Law in Increasing Rates.

HANNIBAL, Mo., May 31.—Twenty-five Western railroads were temporarily restrained tonight by United States District Judge David P. Dyer from enforcing or making a general advance in interstate freight rates scheduled for June 1. The injunction was granted on a petition filed by the government on the allegations that the advances in rates were agreed upon by the defendants without competition and in violation of the Sherman act.

The petition was filed in the United States circuit court at St Louis this afternoon and was brought here by Attorneys Judson and Grosvenor to present to Judge Dyer in the United States circuit court. It stated that unless such a restraining order be issued the proposed advance would become effective at midnight tonight, to the grave harm and injury to the people of the United States.

The petition on which the injunction was issued was presented to Judge Dyer by Edwin P. Grosvenor of Washington, special assistant to the Attorney General, and Frederick N. Judson of St. Louis, acting as special counsel. It was signed by George W. Wickersham, Attorney General; William S. Kenyon, assistant to the Attorney General, and Charles A. Houts, United States district attorney.

The restraining order was issued on the statement of the counsel for the government that they would immediately, by direction of the Attorney General, file an expediting certificate under the act of February 11, 1903, providing for a speedy determination of the issues in contention.

RELIGION IN UNITED STATES.

Protestant Communicants 20,287,742, and Catholic 12,679,142.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—The aggregate number of communicants or members of all religious denominations in continental United States for 1906 was 32,935,445, according to the United States census of religious bodies, a part of the census bureau's special report now in press. Of this grand total the various Protestant bodies reported 20,297,742 and the Roman Catholic Church 12,679,142.

Of the Protestant communicants, according to the report, 80.6 per cent were outside the principal cities of the country. Of the Catholics 27.9 per cent were in the cities of the first-class, those having a population of more than 300,000, while 47.8 per cent were outside the cities of the first, second, third and fourth classes, the last class being cities of 25,000 to 50,000. Protestants in the first-class cities aggregated 7.3 per cent.

Of the Protestants the Protestant Episcopal Church reported a majority of its communicants in the principal cities 51.2 per cent, as did the Church of Christ, Scientist, 82.6 per cent. The report shows a growth of all communicants, both in the cities and country since 1890. In the five leading cities the proportion of communicants to population was: New York, 44.7 per cent; Chicago, 40.7; Philadelphia 38.8 per cent; Boston, 82.6 per cent; St. Louis, 46.6 per cent.

SOCIALISTS NAME A WOMAN.

Nominate Her for Secretary of State in Connecticut.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., May 31.—At the convention of the Socialist party of Connecticut Robert Hunter of Norwalk, author, Socialistic writer, and settlement worker in New York, was nominated for governor. For secretary of state Ella Reeve Bloor of Waterbury, who ran a few votes ahead of Henry J. Horsfield of Bridgeport, was named. There was considerable opposition, because of her sex, and a question was raised as to the legality of the action. Mrs. Bloor won by a narrow margin. She is well known as a worker in the national body.

The platform adopted mostly repeats those of former conventions, with the exception of a plank against government by commission now inserted, it being against Socialistic teaching for the legislative and the executive functions of government to be combined in one body.

The action of the convention must be confirmed by a referendum vote of the entire party of the state. It is not believed that it will be rejected, although there is some doubt whether the state at large will endorse the nomination of Mrs. Bloor as secretary of state.

DR. G. P. BENTON ELECTED.

President of Miami Accepts Call to Boston University Presidency.

BOSTON, May 31.—Boston University reached out into the Middle states today and called President Guy Potter Benton of Miami College, Oxford, Ohio, to the place made vacant by the retirement of President William E. Huntington. President Benton has accepted the election of the Boston University trustees and will come to Boston as soon as possible, as he wishes to be present at Commencement here next week. President Benton is just closing a year's leave of absence, which does not expire until late in June. It is believed that he will assume his new charge in the fall.

Dr. Benton has been long under the eyes of the Boston University trustees, and offers were at once made to him as soon as Dr. Huntington announced his retirement last January. He is 45 years old and has held many important positions in educational institutions. He has also attained much fame as a financial administrator and lecturer.

"JIM CROW" CASE DISMISSED.

Supreme Court Fails to Pass on Question of Railroad's Authority.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—An attempt to have the Supreme Court of the United States pass on the authority of the common carriers engaged in interstate commerce to make "Jim Crow" regulations met with failure today, when the court dismissed the so-called Chiles appeal from its docket.

THE FOOD OF 1810.

Things Our Forefathers Cooked and Ate in the Early Days.

Materials Being Cheap and Good, the Dishes Were Prepared in Lavish Quantities.

[Washington Star.]

What did the American people eat in the year 1810? What kind of food was cooked in the big open fireplaces under the swinging cranes, or baked in the old-fashioned brick ovens? Were the housewives of the early days of the last century able to attain the culinary results of the present age and was the food either wholesome or palatable? There fell into the writer's hands recently a little leather-covered book which in a manner answers these questions. At least its 180 pages contain a deal of information not only regarding the food materials which were available in 1805, but how they were prepared.

It is reasonable to believe that foodstuffs were pure in those days, and we know that many kinds of food were cheap, compared with the soaring prices of 1910. If materials were both cheap and good one need not be surprised that the cookery was prepared in such lavish quantities, or that a bag of flour that would last an average family a week in this age was used up in one baking of pies, with other ingredients in proportion.

Perhaps the receipts in this little volume in the main do not differ greatly from formulas that may be found in similar books of today, though it is interesting to note that some materials considered indispensable in modern cookery are conspicuous by their absence. Flavoring extracts are not mentioned, nor are soda and cream of tartar referred to anywhere, while baking powders were unknown. It may be noted, also, that housewives in 1810 were able to worry along without the thousand and one ready-prepared substances and food ingredients that are obtainable today from grocers everywhere. Some of the food prepared after these receipts was doubtless rich, too rich, and too highly seasoned, but the frills and the fancy dishes do not appear, everything being for the most part on the order substantial. The cooking school was a thing of the future, and the imported French chef had not arrived.

In lieu of flavoring extracts they used quantities of rosewater, orange flower water, almonds, coriander seed and the juice and rind of fresh oranges and lemons, and they introduced wines and brandies into all forms of cookery without stint. Constant use was made of the kitchen garden herbs, and they ran the gamut of the spices. These were absolutely pure, however, for the cook usually ground and sifted them as they were required. Even perfumes were sometimes employed, as in "whip cream," musk at that. This receipt and those which follow are copied verbatim:

"Whipt Cream—Take a quart of cream and the whites of eight eggs, beaten with half a pint of wine, mix it together and sweeten it to your taste with double-refined sugar; 'you may perfume it (if you please) with musk or ambergum tied in a rag and steeped a little in the cream. Whip it with a whisk and a bit of lemon peel tied in the middle of the whisk, take off the froth with a spoon and put into glasses."

There was no greedy beef trust, nor were there cold storage houses in 1810, and meats cost from three to five cents per pound, poultry, six cents. Over one-third of the book is taken up with quaint directions for preparing all kinds of meats, fish and fowls, and with the making of soups. There are elaborate rules for roasting and stuffing, for broiling, boiling and stewing, and for making hashes and fricassees. Sweet herbs were introduced into nearly everything cooked in the meat line, and even fish; wines were used in preparing meats and high seasoning and spicing was the rule. Here is one of the receipts for "Alamode Beef":

Take a round of beef and stuff it with half pound pork, half pound butter, the soft of half a loaf of wheat bread, boil four eggs very hard, chop them up; add sage, parsley, summer savory, sweet marjarum and one ounce of cloves pounded, chop them all together with two eggs very fine, and add a gill of wine, season very high with salt and pepper. Cut holes in your beef to put your stuffing in, then stick whole cloves in the beef, then put it into a two-pail pot with sticks at the bottom; if you wish to have the beef round when done put it into a cloth and bind it tight with 20 or 30 yards of twine, put it into your pot with three quarts of water and one gill of wine. A large round will take three or four hours to boil.

Among the quaint receipts is one "to dress a beefsteake sufficient for two gentlemen, with a fire made of two newspapers." Let the beef be cut in slices, and laid on a pewter platter. Pour on water sufficient to cover them, salt and pepper well; cover with another platter inverted; then place your dish upon a stool bottom upwards, the legs of such length as to raise the platter three inches from the board; cut your newspapers into small strips, light with a candle and apply them gradually, so as to keep a live fire under the whole dish till the whole are expended, when the stake will be done; butter may then be applied so as to render it grateful.

Eggs were 10 or 12 cents per dozen and they were used in combination with all foods. As individual dishes, however, there is but one receipt for cooking eggs, as follows:

To broil eggs—first put your salamander into the fire, then cut a slice round a quartern loaf; toast it brown and butter it, lay it in the dish and set it before the fire; poach seven eggs just enough to set the whites, take them out carefully and lay them on your toast; brown them with the salamander, grate some nutmeg over them and squeeze Seville orange over the whole. Garnish with orange cut in slices."

The salamander was a utensil formed with a plate of metal which after heating in the coals, was held over the cooked wishes to brown them, for, as before stated, a large part of the cooking of 100 years ago was done in the open fireplace, while the ovens were the old-time brick affairs like many of the baker's ovens of today—the wood fire being built in the oven and the coals and ashes raked out when the prepared foods were ready for baking.

To fricassee a hare: Boil the hare with apples, onions and parsley; when it is tender shred small, then put thereto a pint of red wine, one nutmeg, a little pepper and salt and two or three anchovies; stir these together with the yolks of 12 hard-boiled eggs shred small; when it is served up put as much melted butter as will make it moist; garnish with some of the boiled and the whites of the eggs boiled hard and cut in halves.

In lieu of chemicals for raising all kinds of bread, cake, etc., receipts for such foods call for "emptins" (emptyings)—the homemade yeast of our grandmothers' time which was kept in a stone crock, always ready for use. The only chemical mentioned in the book is pearlash, referred to in three formulas for gingerbread. Very little is said concerning bread and biscuit making, as everybody was supposed to know all about such simple matters, but there are several pages devoted to rusk. Here is the receipt for "Rusk No. 5."

One pint of milk, one pint of emptins, to be laid overnight in sponge; in morning melt three-quarters of a pound of butter, one pound sugar, in another pint of milk; add lukewarm and beat till it rise well. "P. C. Rusk, No. 4," called for four pounds of flour and 15 eggs. In another six to eight pounds of flour are used with a pound each of butter and sugar and a dozen eggs.

Rusk No. 6—Three quarters of a pound of butter, one of sugar, 12 eggs, a quart of milk, as much flour as they will wet, a spoon of cinnamon and one gill of emptins. "Let it stand till very puffy or light; roll into small cakes and let stand on oiled tins while the oven is heating. Bake 15 minutes in a quick oven; while hot wash the top with sugar and whites" (of eggs).

Invalids must have had good stomachs in those days to be able to eat the following "diet bread:" One pound sugar, nine eggs beat for an hour, 14 ounces of flour, spoonful of rosewater, one of cinnamon or coriander; bake quick.

Breakfast food formulas, like the snakes of Ireland, are a minus quantity, for the cereal fad of this age is not foreshadowed even a single mention of the word oatmeal. They probably substituted pie, for the breakfast pie habit still survives in parts of New England today and possibly elsewhere. The pastry of the times must have been toothsome, and a great variety of meat, fruit and even vegetable pies and tarts were made, the crusts oftentimes being more elaborate than the filling. There are a dozen or more receipts for making these "pastes." No. 3, royal paste, "excellent for tarts," was as follows:

Rub half a pound of butter into one pound of flour, four whites (of eggs) beaten to a foam, two ounces of fine sugar; roll often, rubbing one third and rolling two thirds of the butter is best.

From the quantities of ingredients required to make No. 2 the receipt must have been for the Thanksgiving and Christmas batch of pies. "Rub six pounds of butter into 14 pounds of flour, whites of eight eggs; add cold water and make a stiff paste." No. 8, "good for a chicken pie," was made with one and one-half pounds of suet to six of flour, and a spoonful of salt wet with cream; add two and a half pounds of butter to be rolled in, in six or eight rollings.

A lemon tart required over two weeks to make. The receipt begins: "Take six large lemons, rub them well in salt, put them in salt and water and let them rest two days, change them daily in fresh water 14 days." After being duly salted, and properly freshened, they were boiled two or three hours. Six pared, cored and quartered pippins were boiled in another gallipot until tender; to the lemon liquor was then added one-half of the apple, with one pound sugar, and boiled fifteen minutes. After preparing the royal paste described above, laid in shallow pans, a spoonful each of the combination and the remaining half of the apple was dropped in the pans brushed with melted butter; after sifting on superfine sugar bake in a gentle oven.

An "apple tart" was composed of stewed apples, Madeira wine, sugar, rose water, orange juice and cinnamon, baked in a plain paste. Dr. Wiley would doubtless consider the above a "blend" and misbranded.

The long list of puddings embraces bread, flour, rice, Indian, fruit puddings in variety, potato, carrot, squash, "pumpkin," currant, orange and lemon, with several "plumb" pudding receipts. One of the last named is as follows:

Take half a loaf of bread, on which pour three pints boiling milk; when cold add six ounces of ground rice; mix the bread and rice together with half a pound of plums, one pound of currants, four ounces of beef suet cut fine, eight eggs, half gill of rose water, one gill wine; lemon peel, sugar and nutmeg as may be agreeable.

WHAT IS A BORE?

A Philadelphia veteran, apropos of Decoration day, said of General Grant: "He talked little, but his words were to the point. One night, at a banquet here, a colonel wearied us with a two hours' description of a minor cavalry charge, and General Grant whispered to me:

"'The man's a bore.'

"Then he leaned back and puffed at his cigar, and, watching the smoke clouds, he said with his quiet smile:

"'What is a bore, after all, but just a chap who keeps talking about himself when I want to talk about myself?'"

Don't Rub. Just Soak The Clothes and Rinse

You use no washboard, Madame, when you wash with Naptha Cream Soap.

You get your money back right away if our style of washing doesn't make your clothes as white and as sweet as you could if you washed them in the old-fashioned way.

Just throw the clothes into a tub to soak. Then rinse and your washing is done.

And this soap cannot fade colors or injure your hands or the finest fabrics.

Naptha Cream Soap

Ordinary naptha soaps are half resin. This dries up your hands, injures the fabrics and makes clothes yellow if boiled.

Naptha Cream Soap has no resin, no acids, no alkali. At the same time it carries four times as much naptha as any other soap ever made. So it does all kinds of work four times as easily.

Yet it is so mild that it cannot harm anything.

It is fine for shampooing and shaving.

10c

Not Like Other Naptha Soaps. No Resin. No Acid. No Alkali.

And it saves you money. A 10c can will go further than two 5c cakes of common soap.

Your Money Back

You can prove all we say without risking a penny. All we want is a trial.

Five Steamers from Menhaden Fishery Company's Works Leave for Lewes, Del.

[By correspondence of The News.]

The fishing steamers start this week from the Menhaden Fisheries Company works for Lewes, Del. Two left Friday—the John L. Lawrence, Captain Martin Marion, and the Arizona, Captain Henry Tarr; Thursday the quick-trip, Captain Hickman, and the Nat Strong, Captain Lawton; Friday, steamer Fearless, Captain Crowley, and the Albert Brown, Captain Edwards; Saturday, the Annie Captain Headley. Steamer with new trap fishing in charge of Captain Charles Baldwin, will start about June 11.

The Public Show Stevens of Swansea, known here, has given to the Massachusetts a piece of land, with sufficient money to build a house to be used as a "house of rest" by the clergy, their wives and officials in need. From the site a view of Mount Hope bay and the surrounding country is seen. It is expected that the house will be finished late spring and will be kept open the year. It has been partially en-

Monday morning, a rattlesnake, four feet long, with 18 rattles, was killed in Tiverton by Mat. Manchester, known as "Rattlesnake Jim," who secured a number at the Newport County Agricultural Fair two years ago. This one was caught south of the church road which is about two miles south of the Stone Bridge.

A launch was wrecked at the Stone Bridge Sunday afternoon. It belonged to William Herryman of Fall River and was a 30-foot cabin boat, named Mayflower. When south of the bridge the power gave out; the wind was northeast and the tide coming in. To have control it was impossible and it drifted up on the rough rocks south of the bridge, where it pounded badly. When it was pulled off it sank to the bottom of the cabin. It was beached on the Portsmouth shore over night and towed out for repairs Tuesday. There were two holes in the bottom, about a foot in diameter.

At the spring convention of the Newport District Sunday School Association the largest number from any church was from the Christian Church of North Portsmouth. The delegation consisted of Rev. David C. Loucks, the pastor; Mrs. Alonzo E. Borden, superintendent of the school; Mrs. Ruth Grinnell, Miss Helen W. Sisson, Mrs. George G. Brawley and Mrs. Alonzo E. Borden, superintendent of the primary Sunday School. Mrs. Alonzo E. Borden was chosen one of the nominating committee to nominate the officers for the coming year.

A number of strawberry growers are again to pick for market.

In putting oil on the roads last week the superintendent received a shower. He stepped to the cart, filled with oil to show the driver how to work it. The latter, instead of turning the brake off, turned it on. It gave the superintendent with such force as to drench and wet him to the skin.

Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Tallman of Fall River were in town Memorial day, to the funeral of the former's aunt, Miss Mary A. Tallman.

CAUSES OF RAILROAD ACCIDENTS.

Negligence of employes is the cause of 75 per cent of the railroad accidents in the United States, says E. F. Schneider, general manager of the Cleveland, Southwestern & Columbus Railway, in an address before the convention of the Electric Railway Association. Mr. Schneider finds that 13 per cent of accidents are due to the negligence of the public and only two per cent due to acts of God.

"I cannot longer tolerate them from a moral standpoint because we are responsible for our fellow men and we should see them suffer as they do not. We cannot tolerate them from a financial standpoint because we are burdened and are tottering under the burden too much fighting and thinking if we had spent the money preventing that we did spend in accident account would be greater.

"I never said that discipline was tried and found wanting as a means of preventing accidents.

"Of every successful man life is divided into two periods; first, the period during which he gives credit for what he could do, when he knew he could not know.

THE "LEAF MINER."

Dreaded Pest Discovered in Newport Boxwood Hedges.

The State Board of Agriculture Investigates Case Reported at the Berwind Estate.

The first appearance in this state and probably the first in this country, of the "Menarthropolpus Buxi," a small pest which does untold damage to boxwood hedges, is reported in this city and it is stated that thousands of dollars worth of damage has already been done to one of the Bellevue Avenue hedges. Because of its habits the little pest is one of the hardest to combat, and when once it has infested a hedge it is said that nothing short of cutting away the hedge itself near the afflicted part will dislodge the pests permanently.

The animal is also called the "Leaf Miner." This more common name is given to it because it burles itself between the surfaces of the boxwood leaf, staying there until it has reached a certain stage. In its short career, when it comes out and flies away. The pest is a rapid breeder, and while it has a short life it does irreparable damage. The "Menarthropolpus Buxi" is a small fly, about 3-16ths of an inch long, with a wing spread of about 5-16ths of an inch. It is colored bright orange and its wings are pure white. Both male and female have the same characteristics to the eye. It is related to the "Hessian fly," which is known as one of the worst destroyers of wheat in the Western wheat belt.

So far as is known by officials of the State Board of Agriculture, this is the first time the pest has been discovered in this country, and it is positively stated that never before has it been reported in Rhode Island. Steps are being taken now by the board to do what is possible to check its spread throughout the state.

Bruce Batterton, gardener for Mr. Edward J. Berwind, discovered the presence of the pest. Last week he called the attention of Professor A. E. Stene of the State College, who is also state nursery inspector, to a "bug" which was causing great damage to the boxwood hedge at Mr. Berwind's estate. Investigation showed this "bug" to be the pest with the long name, or the "Leaf Miner."

It is feared that the pest has also spread to some of the other splendid boxwood hedges in this city, and it is not yet known just how long the fly had been at work before it was discovered. So far as is known, however, in Europe, where it is well known, the fly does not live except in boxwood leaves. It has not been found on other trees or plants, to the knowledge of the entomologists. Professor Stene believes that the insect was imported into this country from Europe with nursery stock, while in the egg state.

The pest, while in the dying stage of its existence, lays eggs upon the leaves of the hedge, and when these hatch, the maggot which emerges immediately burrows between the surfaces of the leaves. In this way it is protected from weather and outside dangers, and in its secure home begins to feed upon the inside tissues of the leaf. It does not eat holes in the leaf, and therefore its existence is hard to determine until the leaf, robbed of its inner workings, becomes discolored in spots. These spots are white. If unmolested, the maggot eats its fill and lives its life inside the leaf, until the proper time in its development has come. It takes on wings and comes out of the leaf to fly away and lay its eggs on the outside of some other hedge.

Because of these habits the "Leaf Miner" is hard to destroy. It is impractical to spray the hedges while the maggot as the pest in its grub state really is, is in the leaf. The surfaces of the leaf protect the worm from all poisons. If a strong poison is used, one sufficiently penetrating to reach through the skin of the leaf, it is also so strong that the leaf itself is destroyed as well as the pest.

When in the egg state, it is believed, the matter can be handled more easily, but the eggs are so small and are so colored that they are very hard to detect without very close inspection of each leaf on the hedge. After being found, however, the eggs are easily removed. Professor Stene is making a study of the pest to see what can be done to check its career here.

The damage already done cannot be estimated until the hedges have been inspected, and this work will probably be undertaken shortly. It is feared, however, that many hedges than the one reported are infected. The pest breeds rapidly, and seven or eight of them have been found in one boxwood leaf only about three-quarters of an inch long.

PERSONALS.

....Members of the Rough Riders' Association will present to their commander, Theodore Roosevelt, a white horse and gold-mounted saddle on his return to New York. The horse was reared on the ranch of James Daugherty in western Texas and is four years old.

....John W. Gates offered to double any fund which the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church would raise for a university at Galveston and the church representatives have subscribed $125,000. In addition, Mr. Gates has provided a site of 45 acres. This means that $275,000 is available.

....Among the pathetic incidents connected with the death of Edward VII few were more touching than the presence in the funeral procession of the dog on whose collar were engraved the words: "My name is Caesar and I belong to the King." His master had abandoned him, he knew not why, and although he still had a palace for his home, he refused food.

....A tree planted in 1840, on what is now the site of the proposed new postoffice at Hickford, Vt., is to be spared the woodman's axe. To this Mr. Hilles, assistant Secretary of the Treasury has consented, following a plea from A. J. Goff, 77 years old, of Boulder, Col., presented by Senator Page of Vermont. Seven generations of the Goff family, the head of which was a Revolutionary soldier, it is said have lived under the tree. It was planted by Hezekiah Charles, father of a former member of Congress from Michigan. The building to be razed to make way for the new postoffice was constructed in 1827.

....General Botha, first premier of the new Union of South Africa, is regarded as a man highly qualified for the important position to which he has been chosen. His career is one of the most remarkable examples in recent history. Ten years ago he was an ordinary member of the Transvaal Volksraad. A few months later the courage and energy brought him to the supreme command of the Transvaal forces. For more than two years he sustained against the British a struggle whose hopelessness he realized from the beginning. When the inevitable end came near it was his influence with his people that turned the scale in favor of a formal surrender which preserved the political cohesion and moral self-respect of the Boers and in large measure of its own supremacy as the political leader.

Novel Aigrette Trimming.

Fancy feather effects are much more practical for summer wear than curled ostrich plumes. A very handsome shower arrangements of uncurled ostrich tips in split cosis is shown on this leghorn hat which is in one of the new rolled shapes lined with black velvet. A black velvet band around the crown and the shower of yellow split ostrich tips form the only trimming.

What will this blazing comet see
When it returns once more?
Will statesmen tenderly agree,
With all dissensions o'er?
Will women have the right to vote;
Will kings still be on view,
And will the man who rocks the boat
His annual joy pursue?

Will people still buy bricks of gold
Or play the Wall street game?
Positions that the bold clerks hold?—
Oh, will they be the same?
When you complete your turn through space
No money for sue can say
What "ologies" will then replace
The "isms" of today.

JUNE.

[W. G. Tinckom-Fernandez, in Hampton's Magazine.]

The bobolink eve, and the song for singing
Under the smile of an amber moon,
O'er empty fields the whip-poor-will winging—
And these are the twilight charms of June?

The long white road for the love-born maiden,
The wind with an echo of some old tune,
The odorous hedge—ah, the dear-laden—
And this is the song of the lips of June?

While wings over the islands gleaming,
The [illegible] wave at their ancient crone,
With the crystal night [illegible] rumbled dreaming—
And this is the dream of the drowsy June!

CURING DRUNKARDS.

[Boston Herald.]

The idea of rational and humane treatment of inebriates, looking not only to their restraint but to their reform, has another advocate in Mayor Gaynor of New York, who just signed a new "drunkard law." The bill provides [illegible] for those who repeatedly offend, but it will establish a board of inebriety and a hospital and industrial colony where confirmed tipplers may be confined for periods ranging from one to three years and forced to labor and be good. The advance in civil ideas as to regeneration is of a piece with the individual sentiment against drunkenness. It is looked upon as a folly that may be corrected, no longer as a sleugh from which there is no rescue. One advantage to the municipality lies in the fact that such an establishment for reformation will save money from the present high cost of policing and prosecution.

SPEEDIER IN DEEP WATER.

Tests of Warships Show the Rockland Course to be Better Than Provincetown.

Results of the trial trips of battleship Michigan and torpedo boat destroyers Flusser and Reid over measured mile course on the Rockland and Provincetown courses show that the Rockland course, with its deeper water, is more advantageous for the speed of the battleship. In other words it is shown that the deeper the water the greater the speed, other conditions being equal. The ships have now left for the Delaware Breakwater course, to compare a mile run over this course with the other two.

It was shown that the Michigan on 20 minutes' notice could at any time increase her speed to one knot more than her contract speed of 18½ knots. There are many theories advanced as to why the Michigan made better speed in deep water, one of these generally accepted being that in deep water much of the water taking the place of the ship as she steams along comes from under her while in shallow water much must come from the sides, the energy expended by the ship in pushing the water behind her being therefore less where there is increased depth.

In the case of the destroyers there is much doubt about the advantage of deep water, the records not showing decisively until completely worked out. In the case of these smaller vessels going at high speed the increased pressure on the water underneath tended to lift the ship and to make its action in the water somewhat like that of a hydroplane.

THE LAST SURVIVOR.

Contemplation of the thin blue line on Memorial day involuntarily calls up visions of the time, sooner or later—alas, too soon!—when that line must fade away altogether and disappear. Ere many years have passed, in every hamlet, town and city the handful of Civil War veterans will have become a half-dozen; and these must shortly dwindle to three, and two, and finally to the last survivor of all his fallen comrades. Then will come the day when, in all the country wide, there will remain but one old soldier to link a new generation with the days of civil strife. Who shall this last veteran be? Twice already has the nation had a similar experience. Who knows who was the sole survivor of the Revolution, or of the Mexican war? May he who shall remain of the Civil War heroes after all his fellows are gone not be in like manner unknown to history!

BRAIN VS. BRAWN IN THE IMMIGRANT.

It is a somewhat bald statement, but none the less true, that America desires in her immigrants not so much culture as strength and intelligence. This is but another way of saying that of all those who come to this country in search of new homes the man of education has little if any advantage over one of sturdy physique and active mind which has been untrained in the schools of his native land, and indeed often it is the latter who has the advantage over the former. America in receiving additions to her population from other countries is not looking so much for the cultured mind as for the strong hand and the keen intelligence which will make a useful citizen, and so it happens often that the man who, though of the lower classes of some foreign country, has acquired an education by study and is well equipped for some special work, finds when he lands on this soil that he must begin at the bottom of the ladder just as do his companions who have not had the same advantages of education. Of course this does not apply to a man who has gained an assured position in the intellectual circles of his own country, but only to one who comes here fresh from some college or university, with only that degree of learning as his stock in trade.

The fact is that America is not looking for college graduates, for young men just out of the university, among those who come to her shores to begin life in this new land, and has no place for such who do not know her language and so have no foothold for their culture. For such there is really no choice but to do as the others who are less well educated do, and begin at the beginning of the road which leads to success in this country. This is not to say that in the long run a college education and acquired culture will not be a benefit and make success come more easily and quickly, or that there is no place here for the educated man who has been here a while. However, it is true that at the start, before a knowledge of the language and customs of the country has been gained, there is no advantage to the man of education and culture, who must begin his life here with the hands rather than with the brains, unless indeed he have money enough to live while he is studying or influence enough to gain friends and assistance until he has learned the fundamentals for a professional career.

This fact has discouraged not a few ambitious and well educated young men who have come here without a realization of the truth in this particular and puzzled many more who had not thought of the difficulties which must await them as they land in a new country whose language is unfamiliar and the customs and habits of these people are wholly unknown to them. These young men, if they have the right stuff in them, are not permanently discouraged and do not remain puzzled long, but soon realize the only way in which they can advance and adopt that course. They go to work with the pick and shovel or engage in trade in a small way, and while money comes in live as best they can, devoting all the time and energy at their command to the acquisition of a working knowledge of the language and the people. When that is done they climb rapidly toward the career to which their education entitles them in any land and soon outstrip their companions who at first had the advantage by their brawn, but must yield it in the end to the supremacy of the brain as displayed by their more intelligent and better trained friends.

This is not a situation confined to America. It is the same in any land to which foreigners emigrate and it would be the same if an educated young man from this country should go to another without knowledge of the language and customs of the people. He would find it impossible to gain a foothold except by the labor of his hands until he had won the mastery of the conditions which handicapped him at the start. When that was done he would forge ahead rapidly and win the place which his culture merited. It is perhaps an unfortunate condition, but a common one, and it serves to test the metal that is in a man and to temper it to a keenness which will tell in the battle of life.

VERY POPULAR GOVERNMENT.

We should have government by the people with a vengeance if the plans of the Wisconsin socialists could be carried out. The Social Democrats in their state convention have just demanded the abolition of the Supreme Court and of all constitutions, state and national. Whatever the people voted for would be the law until they voted for something else.

The crime of the Supreme Court is that it occasionally defeats the will of the people by declaring a law to be unconstitutional, and the constitutions are obstacles in the way of the people having their way. The constitutions impose certain restrictions and limitations upon the legislative bodies, and upon the executives, too; therefore they defeat the popular will. The demand of the Social Democrats is only a little more radical than that of William Jennings Bryan, who doesn't think much more of the Supreme Court than do the Social Democrats of Wisconsin. He would have all judges elected for short terms, so that they would represent the people and would sustain any law which went through Congress or a legislature.

The program of the Social Democrats would make politics interesting. With the constitutions and the courts to maintain established institutions many men feel so secure that they care little which way an election goes and do not take the trouble to vote. With the constitutions and the appellate courts out of the way everything might be begun anew every year. If we did not have civil war to maintain established institutions we would at least have exciting elections, for any election might overturn everything, and anything which went through a legislative body would be law until the people had had a chance at it by means of a referendum. At present it is only the election of officers of the highest rank which brings out a tolerably full vote; votes on constitutional amendments, bond issues and all that sort of thing receive notoriously light votes. The Social Democrats would have us voting for dear life most of the time.

CIRCUMSTANCES PRECEDING THE SPANISH WAR.

Senator Depew has not been refuted, though attempts have been made to convict him of substantial statements in saying that Spain would have granted independence to Cuba without war had President McKinley been strong enough to resist the cry for a war which swept over Congress and over the country as soon as the Maine was blown up. On Easter Sunday, 12 years ago, when several of the European envoys advised the Spanish minister to offer the independence of Cuba as a means of averting war, the United States was on the point of beginning hostilities, and such an offer by Spain would have exasperated the national self-respect to the last degree. To surrender without a blow everything which could be extorted by a military conqueror was not to be thought of. Spain knew what the result must be, but the Madrid government was compelled to fight or it would have been swept out of existence.

Months before, in December, 1897 Spain had granted autonomy to Cuba. She had previously relieved all Americans imprisoned in the insurrection, recalled Captain General Weyler and abandoned the reconcentrado policy, and was sending the peasants back to their farms with a little money with which to start again. President McKinley had assured the Spanish government that it should have ample time to test the efficacy of the policy of autonomy. Besides all this General Stewart L. Woodford, our minister in Madrid, has said in public that if the Maine had not been blown up he could have secured without war all that was preserved, probably preferring to Cuba and not to the Philippines.

Then the Maine was blown up and there was a roar for revenge. Men in Congress were afraid to be backward about showing patriotism; everybody tried to show how much more patriotic he was than anybody else and McKinley kept his ear to the ground about as persistently as any man ever did in public life. To make war would be popular; to resist the demand for revenge for the Maine was sure to be unpopular. It was not in William McKinley to resist a popular demand and diplomatic negotiations were continued till we had ammunition enough; then we "let slip the dogs of war."

The insurgents in Congress are confidently claiming the support of ex-President Roosevelt, basing their assertions on letters received by Representatives Fish of New York and Madison of Kansas, in which Roosevelt declares that he has not changed his opinion concerning the insurgent position since he left for Africa in March of last year. Both the regulars and insurgents admit that Roosevelt's backing is the all-important feature of the situation in the preparations which are being made for the great political contest of the coming summer. Perhaps after his talk with Senator Root Roosevelt may think differently.

The conference committee of the Senate and House has agreed upon a river and harbor bill, in which many items which have been opposed as not having been recommended by the United States engineers have been eliminated. The bill carries appropriations aggregating $51,247,718, a net reduction of $705,500 from the amount as it passed the Senate. This is not a material reduction. In comparison with the total, but there are still many items to which there may be objections by members of Congress, or by President Taft when the measure reaches him. There is said to be still a chance of a veto of the bill.

Germany is making large increases in appropriations for naval and military expenditures. In the debate in the Reichstag it was stated by the minister of finance that the building of Dreadnoughts to replace old warships would require an outlay of $65,000,000, and the reduction of the term for military service, with the consequent increase in the number of recruits, would necessitate a permanent addition to the military expenditure of at least $18,750,000 annually.

The English sparrow receives a hard blow when John Burroughs, the well known naturalist, appears as an avowed enemy of this pugnacious and destructive bird. In a letter Mr. Burroughs says it is the duty of the police of every city to destroy the sparrows' nests.

While Halley's comet has passed almost entirely out of public gaze and later it will still during the present month be an object of much study by astronomers, who will have more opportunity than heretofore to examine its phenomena.

The railroad bill will be passed by the Senate within a few days, all doubts being dispelled when Senator Cummins announced that he and the other insurgent Senators will vote for the measure as amended.

The movement of the State Board of Agriculture to improve Rhode Island farms is commendable. There is little need of abandoned farms if the right sort of work is done and that is what the state board hopes to encourage.

London is divided in its opinion of ex-President Roosevelt's criticism of English rule in Egypt. And well it may be.

New York has a new automobile law which it is estimated will bring an annual revenue of $1,000,000 to the state.

June came in apparently on the winds of autumn. It is more like September than June.

THE NEW LOBSTER LAW.

[Portland Press.]

Now it happens that Maine has a law, and has had it for six or seven years, but it is not remembered that objection has been raised to it. The Maine law provides a perpetual close time on female lobsters (a spawn or with eggs attached) but the commissioner of sea and shore fisheries "may purchase at a rate not exceeding 25 per cent above the market price lobsters with eggs attached, caught along the coast of the state." It is provided that when such are caught they may be safely stored against the time the commissioner comes around and gathers and pays for them, "when he shall liberate them in the vicinity of the location where they were caught or sell them to the United States hatchery for artificial propagation. The object was of course to prevent the destruction of seed lobsters and promote artificial propagation.

If the Rhode Island law is considered bad, the Maine law must be quite as bad. Ours does not say the commissioner "shall" buy all such lobsters, but that he "may." Probably, however, that makes no difference and he buys all offered. The State appropriation has been $5,000 a year, and the report of the State Auditor shows unexpended balances for the last several years. The lobster fishery of Maine far exceeds that of Rhode Island, and there does not seem to have been much danger of swamping the state treasury on that account or of promoting the industry of catching and selling lobsters over and over again. Furthermore, for the purpose of making it an object for the fishermen to preserve the seed lobsters with care, the commissioner is authorized to pay from 25 per cent more than the market price. If the law works well in Maine it should do so in Rhode Island. Perhaps the objections of the commissioners of that state are not well founded.

NOTHING TO BOAST OF.

[National Monthly.]

In ante-bellum days Colonel Moore of Kentucky owned a large number of negroes. He was a kind master and never punished his negroes with the whip. One day one of the field hands named "Jupe" was guilty of some negligence, and was sent to the woods at once to cut down and split up a black gum tree, practically an impossible task. Jupe cut down the tree and labored hard to cut the tough wood, but in vain.

In the meantime, a thunder storm came up and Jupe sought refuge under a brush heap. Directly the lightning struck a large poplar tree near by, splitting it into kindling wood. After the storm had passed, Jupe crawled out from his place of security and after taking a careful look at the remains of the poplar tree which were scattered all over the woods, said: "Mr. Lightnin', I wish you had tried yo' han' on this black gum. Any blame fool can split a poplar!"

AROUND RHODE ISLAND.

No Constables to be Chosen at South Kingstown Election.

Woman Pinned Against a Wall by an Automobile—The Vanity Fair Fire.

The petition of John G. Cross, asking the supreme court to grant a writ of mandamus to compel Town Clerk Howard B. Perry of South Kingstown to have the official ballots to be used at the annual election for town officers next Tuesday printed without the name of Lyman N. Cranston as Democratic candidate for constable was heard Tuesday, and denied and dismissed. The court wrote no reserpt, but it was announced from the bench that no constables could be elected in South Kingstown at the annual district meetings under the law, so that not even Mr. Cross can be a candidate for the office next Tuesday. In his petition Mr. Cross set forth that he was nominated for constable at a Prohibition caucus May 24. On the same day a Democratic caucus was held and no nomination for the office of constable was made or called for. He claimed. Later a committee appointed to fill vacancies selected the name of Lyman N. Cranston as the Democratic nominee, and Town Clerk Perry told Mr. Cross, so the latter averred, that Mr. Cranston's name would be printed on the official ballots as candidate for constable. Mr. Cross contended that the Democratic caucus committee exceeded its powers in attempting to make a nomination which was not made in caucus, and he took the matter to the court with the hope of having his own name printed as candidate for constable, with Cranston's name left off. The court said that the act dividing the town of South Kingstown into voting districts failed to specify the office of constable among the official positions to be filled yearly at the district meetings, and therefore the people are not entitled to vote upon candidates for that office. Constables had been elected by the town council and the court was of the opinion that no other way for their election was provided in the statutes relating to elections in South Kingstown.

An automobile, driven by William H. Earle, solicitor for the Earle & Prew Express Company, plunged on the sidewalk at Benson avenue and Pine street, Providence, Tuesday evening, knocked down two young women in its path and pinned a third against the wall of a grocery store. The accident occurred when Mr. Earle turned out to avoid striking another automobile and a wagon. The machine swerved and dashed upon the sidewalk with moderate impact. Two of the women were felled by the front of the car while the third was knocked against the side of the building. The third young woman is Miss Eva Bell of Auburn. It was not until the machine was moved back a little that she could be released, and it was thought at first that she might be badly hurt. It developed, however, that her injuries are not especially serious. In Mr. Earle's car were his brother's wife and her two children. Although shaken up when the machine ran on the sidewalk and against the building, none of them was hurt. All three young women were taken to the Rhode Island Hospital for treatment, and two of them remained there all night. Neither is in a serious condition, according to the physicians. The third was sent home after she had received treatment at the hospital.

With a fire which destroyed several amusement booths, and for a time threatened to wipe out the entire park, Vanity Fair provided a free thrill to a large crowd Monday afternoon which was not on the program and cost about $10,000. The human laundry was turned up, the "largest pig in the world" (a stuffed pig) was annihilated, the laughing parlor went out of existence, while the cane racks booth, the candy stand, the shooting gallery, the ice cream booth, the soda stand and the Japanese ping pong were completely destroyed. Thompson's coaster caught fire, but was not much damaged and was soon doing business again. During the blaze sparks flew over the park and fell upon the roof the dairy lunch, formerly the Infant Incubator, and set it on fire. Waiters from the College Inn formed a bucket brigade and extinguished the flames before they had done much damage. A careful estimate places the loss at $10,000. The blaze was caused, it is believed, by a lighted cigarette thrown on the boardwalk in front of the human laundry on the north side of the lagoon.

The taxpayers of Coventry in annual meeting voted unanimously to change the date of the annual meeting from the last Monday in May to the first Monday in October, raised the tax rate from 70 cents on each $100 of valuation to 90 cents, made provision that one third of the revenue from taxes should be devoted to the payment of interest on the town's indebtedness and to the retirement of some of the principal, appointed a committee to supervise the expenditure of this appropriation and otherwise tied up the funds of the town in accordance with procedure of the past year. All was accomplished without the necessity of resorting to a "paper ballot," this being a proceeding unparalleled in the history of town meetings at least within the memory of the majority of those attending.

A new Catholic church is to be built in St. Mary's parish, Bristol, and the work will be commenced some time during the summer. The new church is to replace the present St. Mary's Church, which has been outgrown. While no figures as to the estimated cost of construction have been given out, it is confidently expected by many of the parishioners that the total expenditures may reach $175,000. The sum of $35,000 is already on hand to be applied to the building fund and this will be increased as time progresses. Rev. Thomas J. Gillan, the pastor, has taken up the work vigorously for a new church at the point where the late Rev. Patrick McCabe, the former pastor, had carried the negotiations. The site is on Wood street, 300 yards south of the old church on the same street. It is not known just what style of architecture will be used or of what material the new church will be built. The present St. Mary's Church was built about 55 years ago and has a capacity for 1,200 persons.

In appreciation of the services which the late Congressman Daniel L. D. Granger performed in the interests of the letter carriers of his district while he was in Congress, the letter carriers of Providence, Newport and Woonsocket decorated the late Congressman's grave at the Swan Point Cemetery, Providence, Memorial day. Wreaths were placed upon the monument and the shaft was entwined with evergreen. It is the intention of the Letter Carriers' Association to deck Congressman Granger's grave every year in the future. He was an especially good friend of the carriers while in Congress, among the many services he performed for them being the securing of an increase in their salaries.

The first instance of blood transfusion which has occurred in Providence for some time took place recently, when Frank H. Dimont, aged 33, gave a part of his life's blood in order to make his brother, Paul A. Dimont, age 35, strong enough to undergo a surgical operation. In spite of the sacrifice Paul died the next night, following the operation. For some time Paul had been suffering from an ulcer of the stomach. He was taken to the Rhode Island Hospital, where the surgeons decided that the patient was too weak to undergo an operation with any hope that he would recover. The only chance lay, according to the doctors, in the possibility that through a transfusion of healthy blood Paul might be made strong enough to bear the operation. Frank volunteered and the doctors decided that he was physically fit. The two men lay side by side at the hospital from 9:45 p. m. to 2:15 a. m., the blood flowing from Frank's right arm to Paul's left one. In this way a considerable quantity of the life current passed into the sick man's body. Finally Paul became weak and the transfusion was stopped. Frank, who was in good condition, drank two glasses of beer in the period of transmission.

The Warwick Farm Company has been incorporated by Senator Nelson W. Aldrich and two of his sons, Stuart M. and Richard S. Aldrich. Under the articles of association which have been filed at the secretary of state's office, the newly organized company has the right to conduct all sorts of real estate business, not only in Rhode Island but in any other state. Other activities of the company, which is to be located at Warwick, will be the raising for sale of all kinds of farm products, cattle, poultry, etc. The capital stock of the Warwick Farm Company is placed at $10,000, with shares at $100 each.

Patents have been granted to Rhode Islanders as follows: Percy T. Bailey, Newport, fence post and anchorage base; Francis P. Boland, Providence, positive pressure blower; Charles H. Hope, Providence, machine for grinding the surfaces of printing or embossing cylinders; Charles R. Ladevèze, Providence, joint or mitre planer tool; Charles Mansfield, Providence, vending machine; William T. Peckham, Providence, device for reflecting the concealed side of cards; George H. Smith, Providence, assignor to Beaman & Smith Company, boring machine.

Augustus St. Angelo, the only Italian policeman in Providence, has sent his resignation to Superintendent of Police Egan. It is understood that St. Angelo is relinquishing his place on the force to accept a position on a boat line running out of Providence. St. Angelo was on what is known as the station beat in Precinct 1 and his knowledge of the Italian language made him a useful man in interpreting for the police of that station. He had been on the force more than a year.

Walter W. Whipple, formerly of Providence, is favorably spoken of as a candidate for the governorship of Illinois, many of the leading business men of the state having urged him to accept a nomination. Mr. Whipple, who was senator from North Providence in 1891, was for many years in the egg and produce business in Providence, but removed to Chicago about six or seven years ago, having become interested in the building of refrigerator cars. He is now president of the Whipple Car Company, builders of all kinds of refrigerator cars and freight equipments for heavy repair work.

James B. Angell, president emeritus of University of Michigan, and Senator Elihu Root of New York, have accepted invitations to speak at the dedication of the John Hay Library at Brown University next November. The building committee will meet in September to set the date for the dedication ceremonies which will be some time in November, after election. Invitations will be sent to all universities and colleges and libraries in this part of the country. Senator Root was with Mr. Hay in the cabinet at Washington and Dr. Angell was Mr. Hay's teacher at Brown.

THE WEATHER.

BOSTON, June 1, 8 A. M.—Forecast for Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight and Thursday; moderate westerly winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Cloudy, unsettled weather still prevails in the Lake region and in New England. Over all other portions of the country the weather is fair and generally clear. During the past 24 hours there has been a light precipitation in some portions of New England and at a few scattered stations in the lake region. The low pressure area that covered New England Tuesday has moved northerly and down the St. Lawrence valley. The pressure continued low over the entire eastern portion of the country and in the southwest and Rocky mountain region, with areas of moderate high pressure in Oregon and in Saskatchewan. The temperature continues slightly below the normal in the lake region and there have been but slight changes in any portion of the country. In New England the temperature at 8 a. m. ranged between 50 at Eastport, Maine, to 58 at Nantucket, Mass. At New York it was 50, Washington 52, Atlanta 60, Jacksonville 72, St. Louis 58, St. Paul 52, Omaha 54, Kansas City and Denver and Los Angeles 56, San Francisco 54, and Portland, Oregon, 52.

FALL RIVER ACCEPTS.

Will Pay One Quarter of Cost of New Bridge Over the Taunton River.

The Fall River board of aldermen at a special meeting Tuesday evening unanimously voted to accept the proposition of President Mellen of the New Haven & Hartford railway to build a combination railway and highway bridge over the Taunton river, the city of Fall River to pay one-quarter of the cost of the structure. The new bridge is to be built on the site of the present Slade's Ferry structure. Simultaneously with the beginning of work on the bridge the construction of the tunnel under the city of Fall River toward Newport will be commenced. The New Bedford project will cost $5,000,000, of which the tunnel will cost $3,000,-

The vote of the aldermen authorized the special committee on railroads of the board to appear before the legislature at Boston at once, to urge the passing of a bill now in course of preparation by the city solicitor providing the enabling legislation for building the bridge and tunnel. The legislators expect to adjourn within two weeks, and the work of securing the enabling legislation and getting its passage will be expedited as much as possible. The proximity of the date of adjournment was the cause of the special meeting.

ANNUAL SUPPER.

The Choir Auxiliary of Emmanuel Church Entertains Members of Choir at the Parish House.

The Choir Auxiliary of Emmanuel Church gave its annual supper to the members of the choir in the parish house Tuesday evening. It was a delicious supper, the menu, however, not being confined to various preparations in which chicken was the principal ingredient. There were other good things including cake, strawberries and ice cream, and it is needless to say that not only the boys of the choir but the men as well enjoyed the repast. During the evening a number of piano and graphophone selections were rendered by the boys of the choir, and a general good time was had. The members of the Auxiliary were present in full numbers to attend to the serving of the supper and the entertainment of the choir, preceded by the whole Auxiliary membership acting as the committee. The tables were attractively decorated with cut flowers.

LOCAL BRIEFS.

—Lighthouse tender Mistletoe is in port.

—Lighthouse steamer Mistletoe is in port.

—Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Wagstaff have returned to Tuxedo.

—Letter Carrier Brownell has returned from his vacation.

—Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Brackett are in Concord, Mass., until Monday.

—Mrs. Paul Dahlgren and Miss Margaret have gone to New York, en route for Europe.

—Dr. William B. Meany and his sister, Miss Mary L. Meany, of New York, are at the La Forge cottage.

—Mr. Payne Whitney's large touring car was despatched to New York Tuesday night, via the Fall River line.

—Mrs. and Mrs. Erwin Otto, who have been visiting Mr. Edward Otto, father of Mr. Otto, have returned to New York.

—Mr. Richmond B. Underwood, who has been here to visit Mr. George E. Taylor for a few days, has returned to Providence.

—Congressman Hamilton Fish and Mrs. Hamilton Fish have left Washington for this city, to attend the funeral of Mr. Sidney Webster.

—Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Fay of New York are visiting Mrs. Murray on Poplar st. They are here for the Murray-McGrath wedding.

—Two drunks were all the police had to report this morning. One paid and the other took five days in the county jail in lieu of the necessary funds.

—There will be roller skating at the Training Station Thursday, at the usual hours, instead of Monday, when it was thought it would be postponed.

—Rev. Fathers T. P. Grace, L. J. Brady and John F. Tully arrived today in an automobile. All three of the visitors were formerly located here.

—H. S. Marsh has rented for the owners of the Builders and Merchants' Exchange the north upper flat, 5 Colony street, to Benjamin F. Baker, U. S. N.

—Tents are being erected at the Training Station, on the plateau, preparatory to sending some of the boys there, as is customary during the summer.

—DeRoche & Eldridge have rented for Howard Stockton his cottage on the easterly side of Bellevue avenue to J. Fred Pierson, Jr., of New York for the season.

—Mr. Richard Williamson of New York, who has been coming to Newport for nearly, if not quite, forty years, has arrived at his usual apartments at the Riggs cottage.

—Tuesday evening Barney gave an impromptu recital in Apollo hall to some of the members of Aquidneck and Portsmouth Granges, many of the members of which were in attendance.

—The condition of Mr. J. D. Dickinson is considerably better than Tuesday and it now looks favorable for his recovery. He was threatened with pneumonia but his physician hopes he has escaped this.

—Work on the new naval hospital is slowly. There are quantities of material on the ground but sand is lacking and without this not much is done. The high wind today is supposed to be keeping back a scow load.

—Late arrivals at the Perry House include John J. Linehan, S. A. Smith, M. Hilfreth and B. J. Slater, Boston; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Henderson, Philadelphia; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Gurney, Rochester, N. Y., and J. A. McColl, Providence.

—Mrs. Eliza M. Hurlon, widow of Jesse Hurlon, died this morning at her home on Dixon street, the result of the shock sustained Saturday from which she did not rally. She was one son, William A. Hurlon, two daughters, Mrs. Bullock, of Detroit, and Mrs. Curry of this city, and a number of grandchildren.

—It looked today as if a hand was taken by Mr. Keeber in clearing the New Star Theatre site so that the work can be done. He has been trying to explain to the building owners that they must do something today was directing the work of progress was shown. Tuesday there were two bonfires on the premises, there was too much wind for safety owing to the proximity of the stocks.

—Rev. John B. Fay of New Britain, and Rev. William J. Phelan of Providence are in the city, to officiate at the wedding of Mr. Henry M. Murray and Miss Helen A. Murray, at St. Mary's Church Thursday morning. Mr. John F. Murphy of Chief Schmittberger's staff, New York police department, is guest of Mr. McGrath, and Miss May Barnett, chief operator of the "Courtlandt Telephone Exchange," New York, guest of Miss Murray.

AT THE SPRING CONVENTION.

District Sunday School Association Holds Two Sessions.

Inspiring Addresses Given and New Officers Elected at the Thames Street Methodist Church.

The spring convention of the Newport District Sunday School Association was held Tuesday afternoon and evening at the Thames Street Methodist Episcopal Church. At the afternoon session, after devotions led by Rev. W. F. Geisler, pastor of the church, greeting was extended by Rev. Mr. Geisler and a response was made by Rev. Joseph Cooper, president of the Association, who spoke of the lack of interest in the District Association and the practical impossibility of securing co-operation in Newport, despite the fact that good individual work is done.

After the appointment of the following nominating committee—Mr. S. W. Marsh, Rev. E. F. Barrow and Miss Lillie Horton—the first address of the afternoon, "The Boy Outside the Sunday School," was given by Rev. G. A. Hulbert, pastor of the United Congregational Church. Rev. Mr. Hulbert said he is as much interested in the boy outside as the boy inside the Sunday School. The boy inside should be taught more and more to serve the boy outside.

Boys may be divided into two classes, those who come from Christian homes and those from non-Christian homes. The latter are to be judged from the standpoint of society. Some of them help society, others retard it. The only way to save the latter class is by means of the Sunday School and the juvenile court. The influence of criminal boys, 98 per cent of whom are not naturally criminally inclined, is far more far-reaching than that of any other boy. Environment is largely responsible for criminality in boys and if good environment is put about a boy the chances are that that boy will be saved. Christianity should be more practical and mightier in application. In concluding his address Rev. Mr. Hulbert said the place for the bad boy is in the Sunday School, where he can be helped by the good boy.

After a brief discussion Mrs. C. E. Blake, state elementary secretary, spoke on "The Graded Lesson" beginning with a characteristic story illustrating the need of children of different ages having different lessons in the Sunday School. Mrs. Blake spoke of the syndicate graded lessons, prepared by the Congregationalists, Presbyterians and Methodists, the Baptist graded lessons and the Sunday School Times graded lessons.

After a discussion of Mrs. Blake's instructive address, "I am Thine, O Lord" was sung, Mrs. W. F. Geisler accompanist, and an offering was taken for the work of the Association.

The afternoon session was concluded by "Impressions of the World's Sunday School Convention," held in Washington last week, given by Rev. George W. Quick, D. D., pastor of the Second Baptist Church, and Mr. W. D. Wilson, general secretary of the Association. Dr. Quick was impressed with the Sunday School enterprise because of its proportion, progress and promise. There are 15,000,000 Americans in the enterprise; all nations were represented at the convention and $75,000 was received in collections to carry on the work until the next convention, three years hence. The world needs today Biblical instruction and the Sunday School needs an aggressive, wise, modern policy. The spirit of the Sunday School should also be zealous, missionary and militant.

Mr. Wilson spoke of the impression made upon him by the absolute loyalty of all to Jesus Christ as the Saviour of men, by the spirituality of the men at the head of the movement and by the great liberality shown. The next convention will be held in Geneva, Switzerland, and Mr. Wilson hopes that a large delegation will attend from Rhode Island. Before concluding his talk Mr. Wilson stated that for the first time in 15 years the Rhode Island Sunday School Association is not only out of debt but $100 ahead.

After the hymn, "He was not Willing," the benediction was pronounced by Rev. Henry N. Jeter, D. D.

The devotions at the evening session, conducted by Rev. W. F. Geisler, opened with the hymn, "Faith of our Fathers," which was followed by the reading of a part of Philippians II and prayer by Rev. Dr. Quick. "I Gave My Life for Thee" was sung and President Cooper thanked the cabinet and the Sunday School workers for their assistance during his membership. The reports of the secretary, Mr. S. W. Marsh, and of the treasurer, Mr. Charles M. Cole, were accepted, two bills were ordered paid, and it was voted to send $15 to the state treasurer.

The report of the nominating committee was received and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President—Frederick Weir.
Vice President—Rev. D. C. Loucks.
Secretary—Miss Martha C. Pritchard.
Treasurer—C. M. Cole.
Executive Board—The officers and Rev. E. F. Barrow, Rev. William S. Jones, A. J. MacIver, Daniel C. Chesebro, Rev. C. J. Wigren, Rev. John S. Kimber, Rev. C. E. Delamater, Rev. H. A. Roberts, D. D., and Miss Annie Barber.

After the hymn, "Something for Jesus," and the offering Mr. Wilson gave "A Heart-to-Heart Talk" in which he deplored the lack of co-operation in the Newport district. He also spoke of the Association paper, "Our Work," and of the ninth summer school for Sunday School workers, under the direction of the Rhode Island Association, to be held at East Greenwich June 27 to July 2.

The last address of the convention, on "Adult Bible Class Study," was given by Rev. John A. McColl, pastor of the Pilgrim Congregational Church, Providence. The reasons for Bible study were given as follows: the Bible is personally fresh, it is original, it is not taught in the public schools; it appeals to the deep heart hungry of men for immortality. The Bible should be studied personally, critically and devotionally. The personal study is often overlooked and then the devotional study suffers. Rev. Mr. MacColl urged his hearers to secure first a bird's-eye view of the Bible, reading a book at a sitting, if possible. Critical study should not be discouraged, as the Bible can stand the test of the best scholarship, but the most important study of all is the devotional. At the close of Rev. Mr. MacColl's inspiring address he was given a vote of thanks.

After the new president, Mr. Weir, had thanked the Association for his election and expressed the hope that he might be able to lay the responsibility for the work of the District Association upon the hearts and minds of the superintendents and pastors, the meeting adjourned, the Doxology being first sung and the benediction pronounced by Rev. E. F. Barrow.

ANNUAL EXAMINATIONS.

Schedule for the Public Schools of All Grades, Extending from June 13 to June 21.

Superintendent Lull has issued his usual circular for the annual examinations in the public schools, which will begin Monday, June 13.

The examinations in grades X to XIII, Rogers High School, will be as follows: June 13, English; June 14, history, Greek, stenography, typewriting, freehand drawing; June 15, Latin, bookkeeping, mechanical drawing, science; June 16, French, German, geography, freehand drawing; June 17, algebra, geometry.

In the other grades the examinations, with the teachers in charge, are as follows:

Grade IX—June 17, a. m., language, Miss J. Mackie; June 20, a. m., history and geography, Miss Bosworth; June 21, a. m., arithmetic and algebra, Mr. Campbell; June 17, p. m., penmanship, Miss Morrison; spelling, Miss Eddy.

Grade VIII—June 17, a. m., language, Miss Caswell; June 20, a. m., history and geography, Miss Hammett; June 21, a. m., arithmetic and algebra, Miss Taylor; June 17, p. m., penmanship, Miss Batchelder; spelling, Miss French.

Grade VII—June 17, a. m., language, Miss Caswell; June 20, a. m., history and geography, Miss J. Mackie; June 21, a. m., arithmetic and algebra, Miss Grace; June 17, p. m., penmanship, Miss Greff; spelling, Miss Cowles.

Grade III—June 17, a. m., language, Miss A. E. Agnew; June 21, a. m., arithmetic, Miss Gifford; June 17, p. m., penmanship, Miss Callahan; spelling, Miss Lee.

Pupils whose work in any subject is excellent, "very good" or "good" may be excused from examination in that subject, but the teacher has the right to require such examination if it is for the best interest of the pupil.

During the last week the schools will close at noon.

The graduation in grade IX (First Grammar) will take place Thursday afternoon, June 23, at 3 o'clock, and that of grade XIII (Rogers High School) Friday morning, June 24, at 11 o'clock.

JAMESTOWN.

Small Amount of Routine Business Transacted at Special Meeting of the Town Council.

[Regular correspondence of The News.]

At a special meeting of the town council two members, Messrs. Sowle and Arnold, being absent, it was voted to close the stable at the Four Corners belonging to J. H. Tefft and others, for use of the town's horses, at $36 per year.

W. B. Wright was the only bidder for the caring of the street lights at Conanicut Park and was awarded the contract at $10 per month.

For lighting the street lights in the town proper R. E. Sherman was the only bidder and was awarded the contract, at $60 per month from June 1 to October 1 and $45 per month from October 1 to May 31.

Councilman Arnold was appointed a committee to purchase oil and lights for Conanicut Park.

Councilman Barber was appointed a committee to expend $150 for the purchase of oil to be used on the streets.

A communication from the tax assessors, recommending the remission of a number of small taxes aggregating $11.15, was received and they were remitted.

The petition from H. A. Clarke, referred to the tax assessors at the last meeting, was referred back and the petitioner was given leave to withdraw.

Steamer Conanicut was delayed on her morning trips on account of two stops at Long wharf. The first was for a heavy consignment of freight and the second to land passengers for the Wickford boat, who otherwise would have been too late to catch her, the Conanicut being behind time.

Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis, U. S. N. (retired), and family will arrive at their cottage next week, for the summer.

Servants have arrived to open the Woodward cottage on the Dumplings.

The telephone men have completed the work of changing the telephones made necessary by the opening of the central office in the Gardiner House.

Several tows of barges are anchored off the west shore of the island. Two whaleback barges are included in the number.

Cars running today, the summer mail service went into effect. The postmaster will be a busy man for the next four months, as the new schedule calls for see a morning and five outgoing mails daily.

A GRADE IX WIRELESS EXHIBIT.

There is an exhibition at the office of Superintendent Lull a handsome specimen of the work of the Industrial School boys. It is a "portable wireless receiving set" and was made by Master Albert Hayward of grade IX, Coddington school. The enclosing box is neatly made and the instruments in the box seem to be also well made. They are tagged as a fixed condenser, a double slide tuning coil, and an iron-prete detector. The wiring is neatly done and the whole job shows that the boys of the grammar grade have reached a degree of excellence in their work which was once considered good for the high school boys.

POLICE STATION PLANS.

Four Sets Submitted and Those of J. D. Johnston, for a Three-Story Building, Selected.

The committee on police station Tuesday evening opened the plans for the proposed station which had been sent in answer to the advertisement. There were four sets—from Darling & Slade, Robert A. Smith, Dudley Newton, Jr., and John D. Johnston. After a careful examination the committee voted to accept that submitted by Mr. Johnston. This calls for a new building on the site of the present, but about 16 feet longer. It is to be of three stories and the estimated cost is put at $20,000.

A representative of the Van Dorn Iron Works was present and had something to say about the iron work for the cells. It was decided to give his firm an opportunity to furnish plans and specifications for the cell work. The Tandy Jail Building Company, which installed the cells in the Newport County jail, had already been given permission to submit plans for the cell work.

The committee will hold another meeting Friday evening, when a committee from Jamestown will be met and the objection of that town to the use of the present site for a police station will be heard. The committee will also confer with Architect Johnston in regard to details of his plan, on the same evening.

Eight of the 10 members of the committee were present at the meeting.

YACHTING NOTES.

The New York Yacht Club house went into commission this morning, looking spic and span for the season's work. Superintendent Whitton and his assistant, Charles Waldgren, are ready for any business which may come. It was pretty quiet, however, this morning.

Schooner Yacht Merlin has sailed.

Steam yacht Electra was expected from New York today, but notice was received this morning that she would not come, probably on account of the storm.

Mr. Mason's houseboat Athelling is at the shipyard to receive what Mr. Mason calls a "pilot house." This is to be a structure 12 by 12 feet, well equipped with windows, which will form a sort of observation cabin. Some would call it a cupola, but seeing that the Athelling is a houseboat perhaps pilot house is better, meaning a house for the pilots. The roof gardens of the Athelling are well along, despite the chilly weather.

Captain Delaster has arrived to make Mr. Whitall's Jamestown 25-footer Sonia ready for the season. Mr. Whitall's launch Baiao is also being prepared for the season.

Launch Teddy Way, owned by the estate of the late W. P. Heuszey of Philadelphia, is at the shipyard. She has not been in commission for two years.

SCHOOL FLAG DAYS.

According to a circular from Superintendent Lull the school flag days for the remainder of the school year and until the new school year begins are as follows:

June 4—Tag day.
June 10—Burning of the Gaspee.
June 14—Flag day, one hundred and thirty-third anniversary of the flag.
June 17—Bunker Hill day.
June 23—Grammar grade graduation.
June 24—Rogers High graduation.
July 4—"Our Birthday."
August 29—Battle of Rhode Island.

—Congressman Sheffield has offered in the House of Representatives resolutions of the West Side Republican and Social Club of Central Falls in favor of the "Burleson bill" which aims to give oleomargarine a better chance to compete in the market with butter by removing the 10c tax.

—"We Olde Folkes' Concerte" to be given by the Parish Aid Society of St George's Church, promises to be worth hearing. It will have more harmonious elements, perhaps, than the real old-fashioned Winter Concerts of Mr. LeRoy King, and Melodies well known, and simple.

WILL BALLINGER RESIGN?

Rumors Persistent and His Effects Removed to Seattle.

The Tariff Issue in Ohio—Taft Approves Retirement Plan—Aldrich and Hale at Swords' Points.

[Washington correspondence of the News.]

WASHINGTON, May 31.—Is Secretary Ballinger to resign? A rumor that he intends doing so has been current for some time, and has been met by several denials from the Secretary himself. It is again revived, and this time is more circumstantial. In support of the assertion is the statement that the Ballinger family have packed up their belongings and gone back to Seattle; also E. P. Perkins of "shack tent" fame has announced that he is to retire, to enter private business. Perkins has been one of the Ballinger partisans. It is now generally agreed that the report of the investigating committee will divide on partisan lines, the majority exonerating and the minority condemning. This will go to Congress and be fought out on the floor of the two houses. When the finding is made up, so runs the rumor, Mr. Ballinger will sever his connection with public life. The official decapitations which have followed the Ballinger-Pinchot controversy are already notable, including Pinchot and two subordinates in the forest service and Davis, Stenographer Kerby and Perkins of the Interior Department. Now, if this rumor proves true, Ballinger himself, the chief actor outside of Pinchot, will be added to the list.

The report that the Ohio campaign is to be fought out on the Payne-Aldrich tariff law is of especial interest for the reason that the line of battle is the President's own state will have an influence in shaping the fight throughout the nation. It is understood that the stand taken on the tariff will be that followed in Mr. Taft's own speeches, Senator Dick and the majority of the Ohio Republican delegation in the House are believed to favor this course, and as it is the one already marked out by the President his approval would seem a matter of course. If the Taft policies, or any reasonable portion of them, are enacted by Congress they would also enter into the campaign. It is believed that Governor Harmon for the Democrats will accept the tariff gage of battle, but will also insist on state issues.

In a general way President Taft has approved what is known as the contributory plan for the retirement of superannuated government employes. To be exact, he has approved a petition to Congress which is to be signed by the employes themselves. The plan contemplates the payment of a small amount at stated intervals by each employe, which shall go to a fund to take care of those retired at the age limit. In case an employe leaves the service before reaching such age limit his contributions are to be returned to him or to his heirs. The scheme is practically one of insurance.

At last action on the land withdrawal bill is in sight in the Senate. As amended by Senator Smoot the bill authorizes the President to withdraw temporarily from settlement, location, sale or entry any public lands and reserve them for water power sites, irrigation, classification of lands or other public purposes. Except as applies to coal, oil, gas and phosphate lands, they are to be open to occupation and purchase. Bona fide occupants of oil or gas lands who at the time of withdrawal are prosecuting work looking to discovery of oil or gas are not to be affected by any such order, so long as such occupants continue in prosecution of the work.

Since Senator Aldrich announced his withdrawal he has had clashes with some of his old-time lieutenants. First he and Smoot mixed it up over the long and short hair cases, and now he and Hale are at swords' points as to meeting at 11 o'clock in the morning. Hale thinks it is more dignified and seemly for the Senate to convene at the time-honored hour of high noon; besides, it does not own work the Senators. Aldrich wants the railroad debate to wind up, hence he has favored the inhuman hour of 11. There were one or two previous attempts to meet at 11, but they fell through for the good and sufficient reason that there was nobody present at that time to transact business. Then Aldrich got behind the 11 o'clock proposition, and there was something doing. One morning shortly afterward there were but a few Senators in the chamber at 11, so Hale made some sarcastic remarks and asked that the roll be called, meanwhile glaring at Aldrich. The Rhode Island Senator returned the glare and walk'd out of the chamber. Yet it was but a short time since that Aldrich and Hale were fighting shoulder to shoulder. It is hinted that Hale was not pleased with the Aldrich withdrawal, which practically compelled his own.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED.

Death of Edward F. Hollister Brings to Light Secret Marriage.

NEW YORK, June 1.—The death in Yonkers yesterday after a ten days' illness, of Edward F. Hollister of Tremont has caused Coroner Peck to order an investigation. At the same time Hollister's death has brought to light a romance of several years' standing and a second marriage ceremony, performed two years ago.

The widow was formerly Mrs. Alethe Knickerbocker Raymond, granddaughter of the late Wilson D. McDonald, the sculptor. Mrs. Hollister, who is but 23 years of age, married her second husband, a man of 59, October 20, 1908, but had never lived with him, the widow explaining that the marriage had been regarded as a means of bringing a romance to a close, and that the two had no intention of living as man and wife until Hollister's fortune was retrieved, he having lost it several years ago. The fact of the wedding did not leak out until after Hollister's death.

Hollister was taken ill May 21, and the case from the start was a perplexing one. The physicians who performed an autopsy reported that death was due to natural causes. The undetermined nature of the malady which afflicted him, however, caused Coroner Peck to order an inquest in the case.

Mrs. Hollister was the daughter of Willis Knickerbocker of Yonkers. Her previous marital experience was also of a romantic nature. Her first husband was George Raymond, a mining man of wealth. The idea of the marriage was conceived, it was said, while Raymond and Miss Knickerbocker were members of a party on an excursion to West Point in 1906. The young people were fussing about matrimony, and a dare to Miss Knickerbocker, she said, resulted in her wedding with Raymond. A year later a mine explosion left her a widow of 20, with a substantial fortune.

Hollister was an old friend of the family, and was sympathetic to the youthful widow during her troubles. Their friendship ripened into close companionship, and the marriage just revealed followed.

NINE CREWS ON ONE TRIP.

Captain of Schooner Wellington, Tied Up at Providence, Resigns.

BOSTON, June 1.—The owners of schooner J. V. Wellington, now tied up unmanned at Providence, have received by mail the resignation of Captain Leighton of Boston, who says he left the vessel because during one passage from Boston and Baltimore and back to Providence nine different crews were hired, and all quit after very short experiences.

The first crew, said to be from this city, left the vessel before she started on her voyage. A second was signed, and after losing a sail in a gale off Block Island the schooner put into New London for repairs, where the crew quit. The third crew left at Rondout, N. J., where the vessel put in for shelter. Captain Leighton told similar tales of crews signed at New York, Baltimore, Norfolk and Providence, with the exception that in New York three crews were taken on board, two refusing to sail. On reaching Providence the captain became discouraged and sent in his resignation.

HAIR NATURALLY ABUNDANT.

When It Is Free of Dandruff, It Grows Luxuriantly.

Hair preparations and dandruff cures, as a rule, are sticky or irritating a hair that do no certain good. Hair, when not diseased, grows naturally, luxuriantly. Dandruff is the cause of almost all hair troubles, and dandruff is caused by a germ. The only way to cure dandruff is to kill the germ, and so far the only hair preparation that will positively destroy the germ is Newbro's Herpicide, decidedly harmless, it does not stain or soil, dye matter or deposit dandruff. It allays itching instantly, makes hair glossy and soft as silk. "Destroy the cause, you remove the effect." Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to The Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

POISONED BY PIN PRICK

"Several years ago I had a little pimple come between my ankle and knee. I opened it with a pin which caused it to inflame. In a short time my limb was so poisoned and swollen I could scarcely use it. I suffered intense pain, being unable to rest day or night. I tried every remedy recommended, consulted several specialists but grew worse all the time, finding no relief in anything.

"My sister recommended the Cuticura Remedies. I began using the Cuticura Remedies according to directions and I was so much relieved that I slept some the first night. The itching, burning and swelling in my limb gradually decreased and the sore began to heal. After six months' suffering such as I had endured, the relief was wonderful. I continued the treatment several weeks and a permanent recovery was the result. I shall ever recommend the Cuticura Remedies to any one suffering from blood and skin diseases. Mrs. D. M. May, R. F. D. 5, Goldsboro, N. C., Oct. 25, 1909." Mailed free, Cuticura Book on Skin and Scalp Diseases. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Boston, Mass.

FITZHERBERT WINS.

Glory of Brooklyn Handicap Dimmed by Anti-Betting Laws.

GRAVESEND RACE TRACK, N. Y., May 31.—The Brooklyn Handicap, its glory dimmed by recent anti-betting legislation and its value as a stake shrunk to $6,000, as compared with $15,000 two years ago, was won today in easy fashion by Sam Hildreth's Fitzherbert in the presence of a fair-sized crowd, variously estimated at between 6,000 and 8,000 persons. R. T. Wilson, Jr.'s, Olambala finished second, a length behind the winner, and a head in front of Prince Imperial, the entry of the Woodlawn Stable.

Coming as it did after the holiday, today's opening of the Brooklyn Jockey Club's meeting was not as auspicious as its promoters had hoped. Cold, unseasonable weather further served to keep down the attendance, but the chief determining factor was the stringent laws recently passed at Albany, which gave race-goers a feeling that the likelihood of another Brooklyn Handicap next year is very small.

The race, which had frequently brought together in the past 40,000 and 50,000 spectators and the pick of thoroughbreds of America, was the thoroughbreds today by a bare half-dozen entries. Fitzherbert, at odds of 3 to 5, easily outclassed the field and the race was his from the start.

Under the confident guidance of Jockey Dugan, joined by August Belmont for the occasion, the champion four-year-old took the lead from the barrier rose and never faltered. Running with easy stride, he won as he pleased, at times distancing the field by three full lengths.

Olambala, with Butwell up, and quoted at 4 to 1 for a place, fought it out gamely with Prince Imperial down the stretch and crossed the tape second, a head in front of the Woodlawn entry, on which odds of 3 to 5 for third were quoted.

The time, 2:05 3-5, although not so fast as the last two runnings of the Brooklyn, compared favorably with the average since 1887, when the stake was first offered.

The field narrowed down to six horses, including besides the place winners, Czar, Fashion Plate and Hans Kee, that finished as named.

Under a recent interpretation placed upon the anti-betting law by the Supreme court of the state, oral wagers made without the passing of money in public are not illegal and the bookmaking fraternity made the most of it today. The new law covering oral betting is not effective until September 1.

MUST SEEK AUTHORIZATION.

Imperial Decree Issued Concerning Religious Orders in Spain.

MADRID, May 31.—An imperial decree was issued today directing religious orders not authorized by the concordat of 1851 or engaged in industry to seek immediately authorization under the law adopted in 1887. This later law, which has not heretofore been enforced, provides, among other things, that members of foreign religious orders must be registered.

The issuance of the decree follows the protest of the Spanish Episcopate against the interference by the government with orders which are recognized by the Vatican, but which have been ignored by Premier Canalejas.

ALL-NIGHT BANK CUTS HOURS.

After June 15 New York Institution Will Close at Midnight.

NEW YORK, May 31.—There is no need in New York for an all-night bank. This is the decision of the directors of the Night and Day Bank, who announce that beginning June 15 the bank will open at 8 a. m. and close at midnight.

THE NAVAL BILL IN CONFERENCE.

Three matters pertaining to the naval bill are especially in contention between the conference committees of the Senate and the House. One is the provision that the Secretary of the Navy may detail such officers as are necessary to the hydrographic office, which in the House bill is limited. There will be also much discussion of the proposal to retire bureau chiefs of the staff at the rank and pay of the next higher grade. This was inserted to enable E. H. Rogers, paymaster general of the navy, whose resignation is pending the action of Congress, to retire as a rear admiral. It is a sort of offset to the provision of the bill which abolishes the bureau of equipment, but is an amendment by the Senate. Separate votes will be demanded upon these three items when the conference has agreed. Under this condition it is probable that the report will treat them when made separately.

Representative Padgett, of Tennessee, who, with Representative Foss and Representative Loudenslager, is in charge of the bill for the House, is a member of the board of visitors to Annapolis and will be engaged there during the early part of the week. This will delay the meeting. The conference committee of the Senate is composed of Senators Perkins, Hale and Martin.

REPENTING AT LEISURE.

A. J. Drexel Biddle, at a musicale at his Philadelphia residence, praised the marriage of A. J. Drexel, Jr., and Marjorie Gould. "A more ideal marriage couldn't be imagined," said the young millionaire author. "In wealth, in station, youth, everything they are perfectly matched. There will never be in their case any doubts or misgivings—and that reminds me of Elisha Crew.

"Elisha Crew took me aside one evening at a dance. 'I have,' he said, $600,000 to lay, and I can't decide whether to buy an aeroplane or to get married and take a honeymoon trip.'

"'Do you love the girl?' said I.

"'Yes, very much,' said he.

"'Then,' I advised, 'marry by all means, and let the aeroplane go to the devil.'

"A few months later I met Crew again. He had just returned from a honeymoon tour of California.

"'Well, Crew,' said I, 'aren't you glad you took my advice? A good wife is better than an aeroplane, eh?'

"'Right that is true,' said Crew. 'At the same time, if my wife happens to be an aeroplane, ten to one I'm thinking about this time that I worked off a third-rate machine on you.'"

CENSUS COUNT BEGUN.

The Census Bureau has begun the tabulation work of enumerating the population from the individual census cards received from the returns, and Director Dana Durand believes the complete census of some cities will be completed within a fortnight.

Individual cards, the compilation of which is in the hands of seventy experts, if piled one upon another would make a stack 16 miles high, according to Mr. Durand's estimate. This estimate is upon the basis of the population of the United States to have to be in the neighborhood of 100,000,000.

NEW YORK LETTER.

The Metropolis Arranging for an Old-Fashioned Fourth.

Fight Against Transportation Rates—Skyscraper Destruction—The Literary Taste of the Public.

[Correspondence of the News.]

NEW YORK, May 31.—Those who are working to bring about a saner observance of Independence day, with more patriotism, less noise and fewer casualties, have succeeded in bringing New York into line with their old-new idea. At the suggestion of the Merchants' Association, Mayor Gaynor has taken up with enthusiasm the proposal for an old-fashioned Fourth of July celebration in this city this year. A committee of citizens is already working on the plans for the observance of the day which are to include a grand parade made up of national guard regiments, United States soldiers and sailors, members of the police and fire departments, thousands of school children and representatives of the hundreds of fraternal, social, industrial and patriotic organizations. In the afternoon there will be games and athletic recreations of various sorts in different parts of the city. Fireworks are not to be left out of account by any means. The small boy will be loaded his deadly toy cannon and the pistol-shooting celebrant will be sternly repressed, but to make up for these questionable losses there will be a grand display of fireworks under the auspices of the city itself, along the waterfront and in the parks. These measures in addition to the restrictions which have been put upon the sale of firecrackers for three weeks before July 4, it is believed, will result in the saving of some few million dollars of fire loss, will relieve the hospitals and the morgue of the extra labor usually imposed by the casualties of the day, and will not lessen anybody's enjoyment of the occasion. It is held that in New York, with its large foreign population, it will be particularly desirable to place more emphasis on the real meaning of the day and to make it less an event of noise and disorder. Even native-born Americans, it is held, will not suffer by hearing the Declaration of Independence read and listening to an address on the duties of patriotism.

From present indications, practically everybody, whether his position is that of manufacturer, merchant or merely that elusive individual known as the ultimate consumer, is being enlisted in one phase or another of the fight against the all-around increases in transportation rates which are scheduled to take place June 1. In this city the opening gun in the controversy was the announcement of the various railroads that they would make advances ranging from 10 to 40 per cent in the commutation rates governing the daily travel of those who live in the suburbs and do business in New York. Although these increases have not yet gone into effect, the suburbanites have promptly organized and are seeking by appeals to the Inter-state Commerce Commission, injunctions and demands for state legislation to block the action of the railroads. It is estimated that the 400,000 commuters daily traveling between New York and suburban points expend $30,000,000 annually in railroad fares and that the coming advance in rates will increase this amount by at least $10,000,000. The city resident finds his grievance in the increase in freight rates which it is estimated will add anywhere from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 to the yearly household bills of New Yorkers. The fight already begun in the West against this advance is finding strong support in the east. In addition a number of the most powerful commercial organizations in the country are uniting under the leadership of the Merchants Association here to wage war on what they consider the exorbitant rates charged by the express companies. Altogether the railroad authorities seem to be facing a strenuous summer in meeting the attacks that are being made from various quarters.

While remarkable feats in the rapid construction of tall buildings have become so common as to attract little attention, New Yorkers have had their interest aroused by the remarkable work that is going on in the rapid destruction of the largest office building in the world that has ever been torn down to make way for another of the same kind. The skyscraper in question was erected about 10 years ago, is 22 stories high and stands at the corner of Wall and Nassau streets in the very heart of the financial district and directly opposite J. P. Morgan's office. Recently the property was acquired by the Bankers' Trust Company which decided to erect a 32 story building on the site. A contract was made for the wrecking of the present structure which is now coming down at the rate of nearly a story a day, a remarkable speed in view of the fact that blocks of stone weighing half a ton or more are being lowered from this great height. The adjoining streets have been roofed over to guard against possible injury to passers-by but up to date there has not been an accident of any kind in connection with the work. This is the first real skyscraper in New York to be torn down, although several buildings of modern steel construction some eight or 10 stories in height have been removed to make way for larger ones. It is an interesting commentary upon modern business that it should demand the destruction of a building costing more than $1,000,000 and capable, as the wreckers declare, of standing for centuries, in order to make way for another half again as high and twice as costly which in 10 years more may itself be displaced by something towering far above the dizziest height that the city's builders thus far have scaled.

Some interesting facts have been brought to light here regarding public taste in literature by a statistician who has spent much time in investigating this subject. As is well known the one book which surpasses all other "best sellers" is the Bible, and it is computed that there are now no less than 200,000 copies in circulation. It doubtless will surprise many persons, however, to know that Shakespeare ranks next to the Bible in general popularity although of course a long way behind in general circulation. Another surprising fact brought out, in view of the general opinion as to the unpopularity of poetry, is that none of the popular novelists, except in their newest books, equal the works of the standard poets. Next to Shakespeare the most read poems in America as shown by this record are those of Longfellow, with Whittier close behind in popularity. Of single works the standard translation of Omar Khayyam is most in demand. Among general authors the most widely read next to Shakespeare is the late lamented Mark Twain. These figures of course take no account of what may be called temporary successes, books which achieve a large circulation within a few months and disappear from sight almost as quickly.

Unless your heart is in the right place you cannot become one of Uncle Sam's growing family is the effect of a ruling which has just been made by the immigration authorities at this port. The decision was arrived at by the Board of Special Inquiry of the Immigration Bureau at Ellis Island in the case of a Greek aspirant for citizenship named Stefanos Comsocostas, who arrived here several months ago. He seemed to be in poor physical condition and as a result of an examination the doctors discovered that his heart was on the right side instead of in its accepted place on the left. There seemed to be no indication that the unconventional situation of his cardiac apparatus affected the man's health, but the board has decided after long deliberation to bar him out on the ground that he might become a public charge in spite of his declaration that his grandfather and other members of his family had been subject to the same peculiarity and never had suffered any ill effects from it.

Longacre.

EMPRESS CHARLOTTE.

During Her Insanity She Seems Attached to Her Family Except the Late King Leopold.

[Marquise de Fontenoy.]

Among the several suits which have cropped up in connection with the settlement of the estate of the late King Leopold is one relating to the property of his only sister, ex-Empress Charlotte of Mexico. Leopold has assumed, according to some, had indeed usurped, the office of trustee of her fortune after she became insane, in 1867. A considerable portion of this was in real estate in the Ardenne district, which the late king either sold or otherwise alienated. Steps are now being instituted to recover this property, which at her death will be shared by the present king and his two sisters, and by the three daughters of the late king.

With regard to Empress Charlotte, who celebrates a fortnight hence her seventieth birthday, no one knows exactly whether or not she is aware of King Leopold's death. She reads the newspapers every day religiously, and has therefore presumably also read of his funeral. But she has never intimated in any way that she is cognizant of the fact, nor has she referred thereto in conversation with her attendants, who on their side have preserved a complete silence about the matter. The only thing that would lead one to believe that she appreciates the fact he is dead is that she has absolutely ceased since his death from making any mention of his name.

While she is attached to the other members of her family and enjoys their visits, she not only disliked but greatly dreaded her brother Leopold, and was firmly convinced that he was bent on putting her out of the way, especially after the mysterious destruction by fire of the Chateau of Tervueren, where she was formerly confined and from the flames of which she so narrowly escaped. Leopold was wont to attribute her dread of him and her fears of being poisoned at his instance to her mania of persecution, which was one of the symptoms of her insanity. But while he may have been justified in his explanation of her dread of him, the fact remains that it was so great that his visits to Tervueren and afterward to the Chateau of Bouchout, where she is now under restraint, were sufficient to throw her into such a frenzy of fear and apprehension that he was ultimately obliged to obtain a glimpse of her from some hiding place in the garden or from some window of the chateau when he wished to assure himself of her health.

Bodily she is in excellent health, enjoys a first rate appetite, has become quite stout and is likely to live for a number of years to come, according to the diagnosis of her physicians. She spends a good deal of her time at her piano, playing exquisitely and reading the most difficult music with ease. Reading novels, newspapers and reviews occupies much of her time, and on fine days she drives in the extensive park of the chateau, but never outside its walls. She is very amiable and kindly, talks intelligently about music and about her reading to the members of her entourage and also to her relatives, notably to her sister-in-law, the widowed Countess of Flanders, and to her niece, Princess Clementine. She also displays a fondness for her nephew, the new king, for his wife and for their children. But in the visits which they have paid to her since Albert's succession to the throne she treats them just as formerly and without any indication of a knowledge of the fact that he is no longer heir apparent, but now the ruler of Belgium.

All her fears about being poisoned have, however, completely vanished in the last few months. These fears first found their expression in the dramatic interview at the palace of St. Cloud with Napoleon III and Empress Eugenie in 1867, which some weeks later led to such a dramatic scene in the private apartments of Pope Pius IX at the Vatican. From that time she has been under restraint; that is to say, her captivity has now lasted for 43 years.

A CAMPAIGN OF HOUSE CLEANING

Trinity Church Corporation in New York to Demolish Ten of Its Criticised Tenements.

Trinity Church Corporation, one of the most bitterly criticised landlords in New York, has started a new and comprehensive campaign of house cleaning by signing a contract for the demolition of 10 of its tenements.

"This has been the idea the corporation has had in mind for some time," it was said at the corporation offices, "but ground leases and other technical obstacles have prevented the accomplishment of the work until now. Some of the rear tenements are comparatively new, hence the corporation will suffer the loss of some revenue, but it is desired to improve the property."

The rear buildings to be removed are at 83 King street, five stories; 89 and 119 Varick street, three stories; 340 Stanton street, three stories; 5 and 7 Dominick street, two stories; 12 Dominick street, 2½ stories; 193 West Houston street, 2½ stories; 35 and 37 Clarkson street, three stories; 25 Clarke street, 2½ stories. The tearing down of these rear tenements will remove the chief cause of complaint against the landlord side of the rich church corporation.

An official of the corporation stated that so far this year more than 30 old tenements have been demolished, and before the end of the year it was expected to do away with all that class of property. The buildings the corporation has caused to be demolished do not include those whose sites are being improved by the corporation with mercantile buildings. Probably as many more have been removed for this purpose.

In line with the improvement policy of the corporation revived last year, about $2,000,000 has been appropriated for the construction of substantial mercantile buildings on sites formerly occupied by old tenement houses. About 25 years ago a large number of buildings was erected on the West Side, but for 15 years no construction had been undertaken by the church until the Hudson street block, between Spring and Vandam streets, was improved 10 years ago.

Buildings finished or projected this year include an eight-story structure, built at a cost of $210,000 at the northwest corner of Hudson and Vestry streets; a five-story building at the northeast corner of Spring and Greenwich streets, built at a cost of $90,000; three eight-story buildings covering the block front on the east side of Hudson street, from Vandam to Charlton street. These cover a plot 200x100 and were erected at a cost of $560,000.

On the northeast corner of Broome and Clarke streets a six-story building was erected at a cost of $70,000, and another of the same type running from Desbrosses to Watts streets, west of Hudson street, on a plot 94x175, at a cost of $85,000.

Plans are now being prepared by the architects of the corporation for an eight-story, $170,000 building, to be erected at the northwest corner of Canal and Sullivan streets, and a similar building will be put up at an approximate cost of $300,000 on the southwest corner of Hudson and Morton streets.

SELECTING WEDDING GIFTS.

[Caroline Dexter in Woman's Home Companion.]

Answering the question, "What shall I give?" at Christmas and on birthdays is much more simple than answering it when the flood of June wedding invitations begins pouring in. Of course, when the bride-to-be is a dear friend and you know all of her tastes and preferences, it is not hard to select a present, but when she is comparatively, or perhaps entirely, unknown, you must trust largely to luck.

I always say, "When in doubt, give sugar tongs." A pair of pain heavy silver sugar tongs, with the bride's monogram on it, is a present that isn't likely to be duplicated, and will be immediately liked, and used every day.

A tea caddy, too, of Sheffield plate preferably, makes an attractive gift which may be bought for as little as five dollars. Indeed, Sheffield plate offers great possibilities in the way of wedding presents. Most brides would appreciate a set of casters in Sheffield while a pierced sugar basket with a lining of dark blue glass looks like a real antique, though it is only a modern replica. A Sheffield sauce-boat and tray (they form one piece) would be liked by any girl who is going to keep house.

USE AND MISUSE OF THE PARKS.

[Civic League Bulletin.]

Mayor Gaynor's order to remove the "Keep off the grass" signs from the New York parks seems to meet with the approval of the press. Newport has, in this as in many other respects, proved herself in the line of progressive cities; and those who have watched the happy children at their games are able to look with resignation if not complacency on the big bald spot of beaten earth in Washington square, and is entirely persistent efforts of the Park Commission to make green the Mill Street slopes of Touro Park.

New York has, however, one advantage over Newport in this use of the parks as playsteads—policemen are on duty to prevent destruction of property and breach of the peace. A procession of "playful children just let loose from school," capering gaily through Touro Park, one bright May day, expressed their joy in freedom by jumping to the seat, thence over the back of each of the benches in turn. On another afternoon, two small nature students, after dragging one of the heavy rubbish cans a distance of a dozen feet, to the side of a horse-chestnut beautiful in its fresh spring greenery, amused themselves by climbing upon the can and stripping the twigs within reach. The object seemed to be wilful destruction, as the leaves were thrown to the ground and left there. Such misuse of public property by thoughtless children is not enough to fortunately, residents in the neighborhood complain, with justice of the unseemly conduct of those who can plead in excuse neither the tender years nor the thoughtlessness of childhood. If the park commissioners, as guardians of our park system, should ask for a policeman to be stationed, at least during the summer, in Touro Park and another in Washington square, the sentiment of the community would, we are sure, warmly support such an effort to preserve the beauty of these breathing spots and to protect the best interests of the public.

EXCUSED.

Lord Kitchener, at a dinner in New York, praised temperance. "We are all temperate nowadays," said the great soldier. "To get drunk is an unheard-of thing among gentlemen. If a gentleman ever gets drunk, he has, you may be sure, a remarkable excuse to offer.

"A major, after a military ball at Simla, came home, I regret to say, drunk. His shocked wife said to him: "Oh, Reginald, aren't you ashamed? To return from the bal masque in that condition!"

"'Don't blame me, my dear,' said the major. 'You must remember that the character I assumed was that of a sponge!'"

THE HEAVENS IN JUNE.

Arcturus Pours Forth More Heat and Light Than the Sun.

Halley's Comet Grows Rapidly Fainter and Will Soon Become Lost to Sight.

[Professor Eric Doolittle of the University of Pennsylvania.]

With the slow changing of the seasons the faint summer constellations again cover almost the whole face of the sky. Of the bright winter groups the Lion alone remains wholly above the ground, and during July the slow turning of the heavenly sphere will cause this to disappear in the west while Spica and the red Antares, the latter be seen in the east, and the transformation of the winter into the summer sky will be complete.

Almost exactly overhead the observer now sees the brightest of the summer stars, Arcturus, a great sun so bright and yet so far away that it must be constantly pouring forth 5,000 times as much light and heat as our own sun emits. Below this is the white Spica and the red Antares, the former a very close double star and the latter the most striking of all the red stars of the sky. Its flashing, fiery red color can best be seen with a small telescope, but even to the naked eye the difference in color between these three bright stars so near together in the heavens is very evident.

To the east of Arcturus is the delicate Northern Crown, and the great group Hercules, with its wonderful cluster at A, Fig. 1, while still lower down the beautiful Northern Cross has now appeared with the striking little group of the Dolphin or Job's Coffin nearby. The summer branch of the Milky Way with its wonderfully intricate structure, its multitude of stars crowded into knots or apparently heaped into vast clouds, now fills this part of the heavens.

Throughout this region there are very many most interesting stellar clusters. The most remarkable and most densely packed with stars is that at D, Fig 1, almost in a straight line between the stars C and D. Except in a large telescope, however, this appears only as a faint, nebulous cloud, and is, therefore, a disappointing object. The bright clusters at E and F are beautiful objects, even in a very small glass, and are easily visible to the naked eye.

Jupiter, the most brilliant object in the sky, shines out high up in the south in the constellation of the Virgin. This great world, turning so rapidly about its axis and bringing its delicate rose-colored markings successively into view, is a most beautiful object for examination in a small telescope. June 10 at 8 h. 30 m. (Eastern time) the observer will see the inner moon begin to pass across the face of the planet. This will emerge 2h. 15 m., later, at which time the third moon will be seen, also almost touching the planet's edge. This moon will pass behind Jupiter at 11 h. 12 m. P. M. Similarly the second moon will transit across the planet in the early evening June 13.

For many months Jupiter has been moving slowly westward among the stars, but June 2 at 6 A. M. it ceases its western motion and begins to move eastward again. April 1 it passed the interesting double star at H, Fig. 1, in its slow westward motion, but now it is seen to be drawing nearer the star. Its motion is so slow that it will not again pass the star until August 1.

Mars moves rapidly eastward from the Twins, entirely across the Crab, and, therefore, remains visible in the western sky throughout the whole of the month. It is too far away from the earth, however, to be satisfactorily observed.

The morning of June 5 a most beautiful spectacle is presented in the morning sky. The bright morning stars—Venus and Saturn—which for several weeks have been slowly moving toward one another, will at that time be so close together that they will appear as a single bright star to the naked eye. In a small telescope both worlds will be seen—Venus lying four minutes north of Saturn. The two planets will appear to be of almost exactly the same size, the silvery white disc of Venus, now more than half full, contrasting strongly with the greenish ball of Saturn. This conjunction must be viewed about one hour before sunrise, June 5; the planets do not attain their closest approach until 9 A. M. (Eastern time), and hence will be seen slightly farther apart by observers in the Eastern States than by those in the West.

The morning of June 4 the Moon occults both Venus and Saturn, a rare and most interesting sight, but one which unfortunately cannot be seen by observers in the United States.

During the second week in May the comet increased greatly in brightness, and was a conspicuous object in the Eastern sky. Its tail, except near the head, was very faint, but of enormous extent; at one time it was so long that it could be traced half way across the entire heavens.

As the eighteenth of the month approached and the comet drew nearer the sun, it was completely lost in the bright dawn. This was what astronomers knew would occur. At this time all were looking forward with the highest interest to the phenomena of the next Wednesday night, when the earth was destined to pass directly through the tail itself, and observers on the islands of the Pacific were probably destined to see the transit of the head of the comet across the disc of the sun. Would the tail be visible as we passed through it, and is the head made up of particles so large that they would be seen as black spots against the sun, or would they prove to be too small to be detected? An opportunity to witness so remarkable a phenomenon might not occur again for many centuries.

Very unfortunately a bright moon made the search for faint streamers difficult, but as the moon sank in the western sky a luminous area, described as at times brighter than the Milky Way, was seen stretching up from the ground in the northeast, nearly to the zenith. This was very probably not the tail of the comet itself, but an electrical effect produced in our own atmosphere by the electrically charged particles which had surrounded our world after having been driven 14,000,000 of miles away from the head.

Except for this, the display was disappointing. No evidence of the tail was obtained even by long exposures of delicate photographic plates, nor in the bright moonlight could the expected streamers be seen. Yet even this negative result has high interest because it proves the extraordinary tenuousness of the tail at so great a distance from the head.

As to the transit of the comet across the sun, this was also invisible. The observers who went thousands of miles to watch the phenomenon saw nothing. The comet unquestionably passed directly across the sun at the time predicted, and the careful observations have revealed that in this comet at least there is no large solid nucleus, and that the meteoric particles of which it is composed are none of them so large as ten miles in diameter.

It is growing very rapidly fainter as it recedes away from the earth, and will soon become lost to sight even in the most powerful telescopes. During June its distance from us will increase from 82,000,000 to 225,000,000 of miles, and at the end of the month it will be only one-twenty fourth part as bright as at the beginning. During the years to come it will slowly follow the exact path predicted by the astronomers, steadily pursuing its long journey into the depths of space, destined to again return and interest our successors in the year 1986.

The Praising of King George V by Conan Doyle Relegates Inferiority to Other Monarchs.

[Boston Transcript.]

If we were to accept Conan Doyle as an authority there would be no longer room for speculation as to the character and capabilities of George V. as king. He pronounces that monarch "the strongest and biggest man, mentally, who ever ascended the throne of England." This is eulogy "thick and slab," since it relegates to inferiority to its subjects Alfred the Great, William the Conqueror, Edward III., Henry V., Henry VII., and William III., all kings who were epoch makers. Possibly it is gallantry or a thoughtful reservation against criticism that induced Doyle to use the word "man," for deservedly high among the world's great sovereigns stands Elizabeth, whose courage was equal to all occasions, and who foiled the wiliest of hostile statesmen with their own weapons.

There has been no lack of mentality in any of the dynasties, which have held the British sceptre. In the older times when monarchs were their own ministers and their own strategists, their intellectual powers had better chance for display than under the constitutional regime since established.

The "royal assent" meant something under the Plantagenets and the Tudors, and rulers were actively or permissively law makers. The voice of Edward III. is heard in some of the great statutes of the United States, and we are influenced in our daily life by the decrees of Henry VIII., who brute as he was had a powerful "mentality." Nor were the Stuarts a stunted race. Men of pleasure as two of them were they were also men of reflection. James I. was more than the pedant clown he is usually depicted. Charles I. was one of the most cultivated men that ever sat on a throne. His two licentious sons, inherited his ability, without those personal qualities which still plead powerfully for him at the bar of the world's opinion. William III., half Stuart, half Nassau, great statesman, great soldier, saved English constitutionalism, and his name will ever be illustrious in history as a king who promoted the progress of popular government. We owe much to the phlegmatic man who seized the English throne, but never wholly seized the affection of the English people.

History teaches us to revise the contemporary judgment of kings and public men generally. Every generation unearths some document that throws a new light on events or motives that corrects the opinions of factions. The satirist and the historian are frequently at odds, and the former has the advantage, for his words carry farther in sound and appeal strongly to those who delight in the foibles of others. George IV. was something more than the "Sybil." Thackeray depicts The Duke of Wellington pronounced him a man of good gifts, of marked capacity for politics and administration, whose high qualities were nullified by a fatal weakness of will.

A fool may give a wise man counsel—which proves he is a fool.—[Life.

LEMBERG WINS DERBY BY A NECK.

Greenback, O'Malley and Neil Gow Were Close Up.

Race Run in Record Time, 2 Minutes, 35 2-5 Seconds.

EPSOM DOWNS, England, June 1.—The one hundred and thirty-first Derby of $52,000, for three-year-olds, distance about one mile and a half, the classic of the English turf, was won today by Mr. Fairie's Lemberg. Sir John Thursby' Greenback was second, and A. P. Cunliffe's O'Malley third. Lord Rosebery's Neil Gow finished fourth. Fifteen horses started.

From the start the race was between the four horses named. Lemberg winning by a neck in a position gained but a few yards from the post. Neil Gow behaved badly at the post, delaying the start ten minutes, but the field finally went away in good shape.

Greenback settled down in the lead, with the two favorites, Lemberg and Neil Gow, second and fourth respectively. There was little change of positions until the horses were close home, when Lemberg passed Greenback and maintained a bare lead to the finish. Two lengths separated Greenback and Charles O'Malley. Neil Gow was close up in the first flight.

The betting was 7 to 4 against Lemberg, 100 to 8 against Greenback and 33 to 1 against Charles O'Malley. The time was 2 minutes, 35 1-5 seconds, which is a record for the Derby.

No American horses ran in the historic race this year. "Danny" Maher, who it is stated receives a fee of $20,000, rode Neil Gow. The odds on the American jockey's mount were 11 to 4 against.

SEVERAL CONTRACTORS AGREE.

Less Than One Thousand Men Now Out in Boston Strike.

BOSTON, June 1.—Refusals of requests for wage increases were the causes of several strikes among trade unionists inaugurated in Boston today, the first of the month. About 1,500 men, including machinists, building laborers, wharf and bridge builders, sheet metal workers and cabinet makers and mill men, went out, saying that if their demands were not granted shortly, over 10,000 union men would be affected and a general strike declared.

Before noon a number of contractors had agreed to the proposition of their workmen, so that when the 1 o'clock whistle blew it was found that only 100 carpenters 350 building workers and 500 machinists had joined the strike.

KING GEORGE'S HEIGHT.

King George's exact height is five feet six inches in his stocking feet, and probably five feet seven in his shoes; that is to say, just an inch and a fraction shorter than his father. Much has been said of his cleverness as a boxer, as a billiard player and as a sporting shot. To this may be added the fact, not heretofore stated, that he plays an excellent game of tennis (not lawn tennis but court tennis), and when in town or his American was often in the habit of visiting the so-called Prince's Racquet and Tennis Club in Knightsbridge, opposite the military barracks, where they have good courts. When the Duke of Fife had a place at Sheen in the suburbs, King George used to play often on the courts there, and his signature appears frequently in the visitors' book which his duke still retains. Unlike his father, he is fond of both cricket and football and takes much interest in both football and cricket matches, at which prior to his accession he was often seen with his boys. The boys are extremely keen about the game, and are never so happy as when indulging in it at Sandringham and at Balmoral.

THROWN INTO SEA AS SHIP STRUCK.

Six Fishermen from French Brigantine Drowned.

Survivors Reach Miquelon After Trying Experience.

ST. PIERRE, Miquelon, June 1.—Six fishermen lost their lives when French brigantine Mauve struck on Point Blanche, while entering St. Pierre in a thick fog early today. Most of the crew were in their berths when the Mauve struck, and it is considered miraculous among the seafaring population of this vicinity that no more than six of the 25 men on board perished. The 19 survivors reached shore only after a most trying experience.

The Mauve had been fishing on the Grand Banks and was headed for St. Pierre with a splendid catch of 1,100 quintals of fish. Last evening a heavy fog set in, but the skipper of the Mauve, thoroughly familiar with the coast along the southern Newfoundland shore, did not anticipate any trouble in making St. Pierre harbor.

Aided by a favoring breeze, the Mauve tore holes through the blanket of fog and was running free towards this port. A little after 1 o'clock this morning there was a sudden crash as the Mauve brought up hard on Point Blanche. In the darkness and the fog the fishermen did not know where they were, and for a long time there was no answering shout to their signals for assistance.

Some of the crew were thrown overboard by the force of the vessel's grounding, and the six men lost were drowned. Boats were lowered, rafts were hastily constructed and the remainder of the crew finally managed to reach the shore.

The Mauve is believed to be a total loss. She hailed from Cancale, France.

LARA IN FULL RETREAT.

Nicaraguan Government Army Defeated by Insurgent Troops.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—The Nicaraguan government's army, under General Lara, which has been in front of Bluefields several weeks, has been defeated by the insurgent troops of General Estrada, and is now in full retreat.

MISSILE MISSES ITS MARK.

Russian Throws Tin Can of Beans at Crown Prince of Germany.

BERLIN, June 1.—There was a commotion among the royal party returning from the annual joint review of the Berlin and Potsdam garrisons at Tempelhof field today, when a man who had followed at a distance hurled a missile at Crown Prince Frederick William. The object missed its mark and fell harmlessly at the feet of a footman. On investigation it was found to be an ordinary tin can, and was filled with uncooked beans. The police seized the assailant, who proved to be a Russian named Abraham Flerwolss, a resident of this city. It is thought that he is not responsible for his act.

The crown prince represented the emperor at the review, as the abscess on His Majesty's right wrist is still bothering him.

RATHER DEATH THAN DISGRACE

Marine Sergeant, Fearing Court-Martial Sentence, Kills Himself.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 1.—Preferring death to disgrace and probable prison sentence from pending court-martial proceedings, G. C. Reeves, a sergeant in the United States marines stationed on Goat island, here, snatched a private's revolver from its holster yesterday and deliberately blew out his brains. Reeves was accused of drawing up a false report to his superior regarding a fight in which he engaged.

THE MORSE TOWED TO CAMDEN.

Will Be Made Seaworthy and Then Go to East Boston for Repairs.

ROCKLAND, Me., June 1.—Steamer James T. Morse of the Eastern Steamship Company's fleet, which was sunk at her berth a week ago by steamer Belfast and floated Monday, was towed to Camden today. There she will be put in seaworthy condition before proceeding to East Boston for extensive repairs.

BIG EXODUS TO GOLD FIELDS.

Fifteen Thousand Expected to Leave Seattle on Early Sailings.

SEATTLE, Wash., June 1.—Officials of companies operating steamships to Alaska points on the Behring sea estimate that 15,000 people will leave Seattle for Nome and St. Michael's on the early sailings, drawn to the Far North by the reports of rich gold discoveries in the Iditarod fields. The first regular liner to leave for Nome will sail from Seattle tomorrow, and every berth was sold weeks in advance.

STEEPLEJACKS MAKE REPAIRS.

Gentile Feet in Mormon Temple in Salt Lake for the First Time.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 1.—Yesterday, for the first time since the consecration of the edifice in 1893, gentile feet trod the sacred precincts of the Mormon temple. In Salt Lake. Arthur Smith and Peter Munyon, steeplejacks, with two helpers, were admitted to repair the statue of the Angel Moroni, which surmounts the tallest spire of the temple. They were taken to the top of the tower in an elevator, and did not penetrate the apartments in which marriages and baptisms for the dead are solemnized.

The chief damage to the gilded figure of the angel on the spire was the dislocation of a trumpet held to its lips. The explosion of a charge of dynamite in the Utah Hotel building across the street a few weeks ago tore the trumpet from its fastenings.

MEN ACCEPT COMPROMISE.

Threatened Tie-Up of Detroit Railway Company Averted.

DETROIT, June 1.—The threatened tie-up of the Detroit United Railway Company's city lines was definitely averted last night, when the company's motormen and conductors, who have been seeking a flat wage scale of 30 cents an hour, voted to accept a compromise offered by the company.

'LECTION DAY RECALLED.

Band Concert, Enjoyed by All, Makes the Older Newporters Reminiscent.

The concert by the Newport Military Band on Washington square Tuesday evening, in observance of the anniversary, or perhaps in memory, of the old-time 'Lection day, Newport's former distinctive holiday, was greatly enjoyed by a large crowd. The Mall and the adjoining sidewalks were filled with interested listeners to the excellent program rendered by the band under the direction of Mr. F. J. McCloskey. The pleasure of the entertainment, however, was somewhat lessened by the conduct of the boys, who seemed to think it was a necessary part of the observance that they should make all the noise possible. Perhaps they did not make all they could, but it was enough to interfere considerably with those who wished to hear the band.

The program included selections from Suppe, Holzmann, Victor Herbert, Von Tilzer, Sousa, Salzer, Hall, Phillis and Morris—certainly a wide enough range to suit all tastes. There were many children and a considerable number of adults who never know what 'Lection day was for Newport, but it mattered not; they were out to enjoy the band concert, and they did. To the older Newporters, many of whom were in the crowd, it was not only pleasant to hear the music, but also to recall the former glories and pleasures of the holiday. Many of these, when two or three met, became reminiscent, and found additional pleasure in recounting some incident of former days. It was generally acknowledged that the band in observing the anniversary and giving an outdoor concert weeks in advance of the regular season, had given Newport an unusual pleasure and was deserving the hearty thanks of all.

REAL ESTATE SALES.

Mary Rose Trueson and others of California have sold to Gustave Gunzendorfer of San Francisco the Francis Short estate on Levin street, about which there had been two suits in the superior court, which were decided in favor of the grantors. The estate is bounded north, 48 feet, on land of Harriet Benson; east, 50 feet, by land of Harriet Benson and M. H. Stedman; south, 50 feet, on Levin street, and west, 50 feet, by land of Julia Sheehan. This estate was sold to Francis Short by Robinson Porter by deed dated October 29, 1844.

The Barker Building & Realty Company has sold to Ethel M., wife of Robert Patterson, Jr., lot 29 on the Stanton Terrace plat, bounded north, 40 feet, on County street; east, 88 feet, and south, 40 feet, by land of the grantor, and west, 88 feet, by land about to be conveyed to Abbie A. Barker.

The Barker Building & Realty Company has sold to Abbie A., wife of Ashton C. Barker, lot 28 on the Stanton Terrace plat, bounded north, 38 feet, on County street; east, 88 feet, on land of Ethel M. Patterson; south, 38 feet, and west, 88 feet, on other land of the grantor.

NOT SO MANY FISH.

It was blowy and blustery outside for much fishing today, but the trap fishermen could bring in from their traps and there will be a fair shipment. Tuesday 669 barrels of fish went to New York by boat, but there will not be so much tonight. All the mackerel netters seem to have clung to the dock Tuesday night, for there were but three arrivals today. Henry Monson, In the Alice, who did go out, brought in 275 mackerel; Tecumseh had 700 and the Thistle 100. Fred Harty had an easy time. The price of mackerel on the dock has taken another boom and is up to 25 cents. The more they have the more they want, and the fish are running in fine shape and size.

A COLD FIRST OF JUNE.

Today is the first of June, when summer is supposed practically to begin and when much of the season opens. The weather furnished may be intended for summer, but if so it must be for a summer up near the north pole somewhere. The wind still holds from the southwest, to which point it backed Tuesday, and perhaps this weather was intended for the south pole. There is a freshness about the wind—"smoky," is what the fishermen call it—which reminds one of the ides of March, or some other blustery time. Old Sol is doing his part, but apparently it must be the comet which has put him out, for his work counts for little. To help things along, the comet keeps out of sight.

TAG DAY.

Playground Association Hopes for Many Contributions, Including the Little Helps of the Multitude.

To the Editor of The News:

Once more comes the cry of the playground—a cry from the children for opportunity and instruction, and a cry for the children to the pocketbook for first aid. In the past few years the cry has gone up from all over the land. It has been heard and answered. It was heard in Newport last May, and there was a generous response on Tag day. The first Saturday in June comes this week, and with it a second opportunity to help the children by a humble contribution which no one will miss.

Last year the day had few unfavorable criticisms—after the event. This year the same committee, but with the experience of last year for its guidance, will try to avoid even the few unfavorable comments. The little helps of the multitude, although the large will not be refused, are especially desired. These many nickles and these fewer nuckles will help the Playground Association to continue and improve the plans of last year.

Don't forget the children! Don't forget Saturday the fourth—Don't forget the second Tag Day!

"THE HOLY CITY."

Gaul's Oratorio, to be Given by the High School Chorus, a Well Known Composition.

The oratorio, "The Holy City," by Alfred R. Gaul, which is to be presented by the Rogers High School chorus in the assembly hall of the school, is a well known musical composition of chorus, solo, duet and semi-chorus work. The treatment of the subject is almost entirely reflective, the more dramatic parts of the book from which many of the numbers are taken, the Vision of St. John, having already been treated in a masterly manner by the great German composer, Louis Spohr, in his Oratorio, "The Last Judgment."

The first part of "The Holy City" was suggested by the passages of scripture, "Here have we no continuing city," "Thy kingdom come," and sets forth the desire for a higher life, as expressed in the words, "My soul is athirst for God," which desire is followed by other passages expressive of the perfection of the higher life, such as "Eye hath not seen." The second part was suggested by the words, "I saw a new heaven and a new earth, for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away," thus realizing the desire and promises contained in the first part. With the exception of two hymns, a verse from Milton, and three verses from the Te Deum, the words are entirely scriptural.

Owing to the smallness of the assembly hall the members of the chorus will have but one ticket each for the admission of friends, and other members of the school none.

FORMIDABLE GROWTH OF DEBT OF FRANCE.

The formidable growth of the public debt of France, its departments and colonies, is likely soon to cause alarm on the part of the nation, which in its individual affairs is the most economical in the world. This debt, amounting to more than $7,000,000,000 and exceeding that of any other country, it is claimed, is too easily lost sight of by the people. They should remember that the interest and other annual charges to which it subjects them exceed $300,000,000. The debt itself is rapidly increasing. From the total as estimated are expressly excluded both the capital of the annuities payable by the state, amounting to about $2,000,000,000, and some $30,000,000 which the estate owes to railway companies for lines recently purchased.

FLIM-FLAM INSURANCE.

C. Griscom Pratt, an insurance expert, talked at a dinner in New York about success. "Success," he said, "comes to the man who sees the public need for new things and supplies this need—in the shape, for example, of moving picture shows, or aeroplanes, or microbes to ward off old age.

"A blackleg had a kind of perverted success germ in him when he complained to another blackleg:

"'I suppose you heard about the scrubwoman at the Flasco Theatre? Well, she found last week a magnificent diamond stomacher in a box in sweeping up. The honest old soul determined to restore the stomacher to its owner, and the owner, of course, wasn't long in turning up—a young woman, splendidly dressed, and on the verge of hysteria.

"'Oh, have you found my stomacher?' she cried. 'It is a chef d'oeuvre of Lalique of the Place Vendome?'

"'Calm yourself, madam,' said the scrubwoman. 'Here is your stomacher.' And she produced it from her pocket.

"The other took out a $50 bill, passed it on the honest scrubwoman, and departed with her stomacher hurriedly.

"An hour later another lady called.

"'Have you found my stomacher?' she asked, smiling. 'I think I left it in my box.'

"'Why, yes, ma'am; but if it was your stomacher,' said the scrubwoman, 'a thief has got it. She got it this morning. She gave me $50 reward.'

"'Why, the stomacher was imitation,' the lady said. 'It only cost $5. Your thief is $45 out.'

"Then for a long time, in silence, the two blacklegs shook their heads sadly over this episode. Finally the first resumed:

"'What times these are! You can't do your work, even if it's crooked work. I tell you, Bill, there's urgent need today of an insurance company that will issue policies protecting flim-flammers from being flim-flammed.'"

PAYMASTER GENERAL COWIE.

His Popularity Justifies His Selection for the Post.

Based Upon His Excellent Record in the Corps and His Work for Increased Pay.

[Army and Navy Journal.]

The popularity enjoyed by Pay Director Thomas J. Cowie, U. S. N., among his brother officers justifies his selection by Secretary Meyer as the successor of Paymaster General Eustace B. Rogers as chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts. This popularity is based not only upon charm of manner, but also upon a most excellent record in the pay corps as an administrative officer and upon his successful work in obtaining the recent legislation providing for a ten per cent increase of pay for naval officers.

Paymaster General Thomas J. Cowie, U. S. N.

The new paymaster general was appointed to the navy in June, 1880, from Iowa, and has nine years to serve on the active list. He has had nearly nine years sea service and about 11 ashore. He finished his last sea tour in 1904, and spent a year on land before going to Annapolis in 1905. One of the promising features of his appointment is that he is known to be in complete sympathy with the plans of Secretary Meyer, which, if they are to receive a satisfactory trial, must be carried out by officers who are not controversially hostile to the aims of the Secretary.

Had it not been for a staunch belief that the navy would ultimately lose, and lose much, by the abandonment of the system which he had brought into the management of the naval stores Paymaster General Rogers would doubtless have seen that the only way to test the proposed re-organization was to give Secretary Meyer full control, and that to subject his scheme to any limitation imposed by a bureau chief would be to put the Secretary in the position of fathering a patchwork plan for which he could not fairly be held responsible. Now Secretary Meyer is precisely the sort of man who does not care for a divided responsibility. He is willing to lay out a plan of action and stand or fall by it, but he insists that his plans shall wholly dominate.

The new paymaster general, pursuant to orders from Secretary Meyer, reported at the department May 25 and made a tour of the offices of the bureau of supplies and accounts, being assigned to temporary duty pending the formalities attending his promotion to the position of paymaster general. E. B. Rogers, chief of the bureau, surrendered to his successor, Pay Director Carpenter, May 21, and departed the next day on a rusticating trip to the country, having decided to give up the office at once in order to take advantage of some of the cumulative leave due him.

During his temporary tenure as chief of the bureau nearly four years, he has taken less than three weeks' leave, so that he would be entitled to more than three months' leave before making his retirement effective. He did not call the attention of the Secretary to the leave due him, but it is thought, if the special pay clause recently inserted in the naval appropriation bill is defeated, Mr. Meyer may voluntarily grant him two or three months' leave, thus relieving him from all duty in the navy, his retirement to become effective upon the expiration of his leave of absence. It is expected that he will return within two weeks to take final leave of the department after his retirement application is approved.

Pay Director T. J. Cowie announced May 26 that he had selected Paymaster Samuel Bryan to be his chief assistant as soon as he takes formal charge of the office of chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts of the navy. Mr. Bryan has been pay officer and commissary officer of ships and enlisted men and assistant to the pay officer and general storekeeper at the Naval Academy. He is widely known in the service because of both his efficiency as an officer and his courtesy of manner. Pay Director Cowie, on assuming informal charge of the office, received a shower of telegrams from friends both in and out of the service congratulating him on his promotion.

The administration of the bureau may suffer another change, this time in the scope of its work, as the Secretary of the Navy may divide up its work and have some of it done elsewhere. The bureau of supplies and accounts now covers practically the work done in the army by the quartermasters, the subsistence and the pay departments, and it is thought that a division of these duties may make for higher efficiency.

NEW BUILDING NEEDED.

Rhode Island Medical Society Makes Appropriation for Site and Offers Prizes.

The Rhode Island Medical Society, at its annual meeting in Providence Tuesday, voted to appropriate $7,482.50 to purchase a site for a new building. The society at present has no abode. The retiring president, Dr. Eugene Kingman, in his annual address urged the need of a home in which to meet, and a library in which to keep its books and other papers. He declared that the greatest need is money with which the proposed building could be fitted, to include an audience room, committee rooms and a complete instrument room and laboratory.

Among the activities outlined by Dr. Kingman was a plan for research work and the employment of counsel to draft medical laws for the health of the state and a method of searching out all infringements of health and assisting health boards.

Dr. Kingman expressed the hope that two years hence the society would celebrate its centennial in a building of its own, and that the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary will find the organization in possession of a well-appointed library and pathological buildings, with an ample bank account and a future of great promise.

The treasurer reported that a special fund of $5,000 had been received from the estate of the late Dr. Horace G. Miller, to be used to maintain the opthalmological library.

The annual report of the secretary showed that the society numbers 381 members, divided as follows: Resident, 345; non-resident, 27; honorary, 12. It was unanimously voted to offer a prize of $200 for the best essay on "Vaccine Therapy" and another of $200 for the best essay on "Tobacco and Its Evil Effects on Those Who Habitually Use It," both essays to be written and delivered in 1911.

A resolution endorsing the Owens bill, now before the United States Senate, which provides for a department of health, was unanimously adopted, and it was voted to urge upon the Senators and Representatives in Congress from Rhode Island that they bring every influence to bear to bring about its passage.

The dinner was held in the evening in the large dining hall at the Masonic Temple, and more than 200 members were present. The principal speaker was Dr. J. Alex. Hutchison, chief medical officer of the Grand Trunk railway system, who declared that he looked "forward to no distant date to seeing packages of freight labelled 'made in Providence' on our Prince Rupert docks, bound for the Orient via the Grand Trunk Railway and Steamships."

The addresses were delivered by Dr. Timothy Leary of Boston, professor of pathology at Tufts College, and Edward F. McSweeney, chairman of the board of trustees of the Boston Tuberculosis Hospital.

Among the new members of the society elected was Dr. Harry V. Carroll of this city.

The Caleb Fish fund prize of $200 for the best essay on the subject, "The Classification and Treatment of the Diseases Commonly Known as Rheumatism," was awarded to Dr. Frank H. Peckham of Providence.

DEATH OF STEPHEN SHEA.

One of the oldest of the old-time residents of Callender avenue has passed away in the death of Mr. Stephen Shea, at the home of his son, Mr. Stephen A. Shea, on Warner street. Mr. Shea was a farmer and a man who held the respect of all who had dealings with him on account of the strict honesty of his ways. In recent years, owing to the infirmities of old age, he was so feeble as to be unable to work, but could look back to a long and useful life of endeavor to do his part. He leaves a widow and two children, Mr. Stephen A. Shea and Mrs. John Smith.

OPENING THE CONFERENCE.

Assistant Secretary Winthrop Speaks at the War College.

Parade of Apprentice Seamen and Social Entertainments in His Honor.

The summer conference of 1910 at the Naval War College opened today, a large portion of the class having already reported and Assistant Secretary of the Navy Beekman Winthrop being present to deliver the opening address. The proceedings of the present year at the college will probably be more secret than ever, though for the past few years the public has known but little of the actual doings, the detailed stories of lectures and determinations being more imaginary than real. This year the officers will make personal reports through sealed channels to the department, and thus there will be no chance for leaks through assistents.

Secretary and Mrs. Winthrop arrived Tuesday evening at the quarters of Admiral and Mrs. Rodgers, where they are now guests. This morning things were lively about the college, owing to the reporting of the members of the conference, and later the arrival of the army and navy officers located about Newport. Shortly after 11 o'clock the assistant Secretary left the commandant's quarters for the War College. The Station band was on duty at the flag-staff and he was formally received by the commanding officers of the Station, and ruffles sounded in his honor.

Then, proceeding to the library of the War College, he received former presidents of the college, the officers, including the members of the conference, and one or two citizens. Conspicuous among the officers who greeted the Secretary was Admiral Stephen B. Luce (retired), who was almost the father of both the War College and the Training Station and still maintains an active interest in both.

Following the reception the party assembled in the lecture room, where the assistant Secretary was formally introduced by the president of the college and delivered the opening address behind closed doors, with a sentry standing guard outside.

About ten minutes before 12 the party was seen leaving the college. The full apprentice seaman brigade, Mate William McKay in command, was already drawn up on the parade ground and a number of guests had arrived to witness the display. The assistant secretary, accompanied by Admiral Rodgers, took post at the flag-staff, with the other officers and guests in the background. The brigade presented arms, the salute being acknowledged by Mr. Winthrop, and then the boys were put through various evolutions to show what they could do. There was the setting-up drill, the semaphore drill, physical exercise with rifles, and marching in various formations, including a brigade square, ending with a march past in review. The work of the brigade was excellent and the Assistant Secretary appeared to be deeply impressed with what he saw.

The formality of the parade lasted 35 minutes and during this time all were exposed to a gale, the high southwesterly wind sweeping up over the grounds in such a manner that there was no place for shelter from it, and the Assistant Secretary stood its full fury. Most of the ladies assembled on the piazza of the headquarters building, where they gained a slight shelter, while the officers made themselves as comfortable as possible in the chairs in front of the building. A large numbers of seats had been brought out, and had the day been favorable there is little doubt but there would have been a large gathering to witness the exhibition.

At 1 o'clock the assistant Secretary was entertained at luncheon by Admiral Rodgers. Besides the assistant Secretary and Mrs. Winthrop, and Mrs. Robert Winthrop, mother of the assistant Secretary, the guests were Rear Admirals Luce, Chadwick and Sperry, Captain Pillsbury, Commanders Dove, Houston, Bristol and Marble and Lieutenant Jackson.

This afternoon the representative of the head of the Navy Department is to make a formal inspection of the Torpedo Station and the naval coaling station at Bradford, torpedo boat Morris being used for the latter trip.

Late this afternoon Mrs. Rodgers has invited the officers of the Naval Station, Narragansett Bay, and their wives, to meet Assistant Secretary and Mrs. Winthrop at tea.

The conference this year thus far comprises: Captain C. B. T. Moore, Commanders C. H. Harlow, W. F. White and F. W. Kellogg; Lieutenant Commanders L. A. Kaiser, P. Symington and F. M. Freeman; Lieutenants C. C. Soule, Jr., E. T. Constien, H. A. Stuart, J. J. McCracken and S. I. M. Major; Surgeon F. L. Pleadwell, Captains G. Van Orden and J. H. A. Day of the marine corps and Captain Merritt, U. S. A. Commander C. H. Harrow, U. S. N., and Major C. A. Barth, U. S. A., are also ordered to attend but have not yet reported, and before the session is over many others will probably be in attendance.

TWO WEDDINGS.

Miss Sheehan Marries James J. O'Brien at St. Joseph's—Miss Jester, Mr. Haas at Bride's Home.

St. Joseph's Church was filled to overflowing this morning to witness the marriage of Miss Margaret Sheehan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel B. Sheehan, to Boatswain James J. O'Brien, U. S. N. The church was prettily decorated by Schultz with palms and Easter lilies. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James Mahon, pastor of the church.

The bride presented a pleasing picture in a gown of white chiffon, en traine, with trimmings of Duchess lace, her veil also being edged with similar lace. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley. Her attendants were her sister, Miss Mollie A. Sheehan, as maid of honor, and Miss Gertrude Sullivan as bridesmaid. The former wore a gown of pink chiffon over white satin with a hat of Tuscan straw trimmed with pink roses. She carried a shower bouquet of pink sweet peas. The bridesmaid's gown was white hand-painted mulle over pink satin and she wore a large hat of pink chiffon, her bouquet being also of pink sweet peas. The groom was attended by Mr. Bartley Sheehan as best man and the ushers were Messrs. Henry T. Harvey, Jr., Michael McManus, Thomas Curry and William Quigley.

The bride's gift to the maid of honor was a gold bracelet and to her bridesmaid a baroque pearl pin. The groom's gift to his best man was a pair of gold cuff links and to his ushers baroque pearl scarf pins.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served to the bridal party at the residence of the bride's parents, on Equality Park place, the house being also decorated with palms and cut flowers. During the afternoon and evening a reception was held and was largely attended by friends of the bride and groom.

Mr. and Mrs. O'Brien will leave on the Fall River Line boat for New York and Washington. After their wedding trip they will return to Newport, to make their home temporarily, the groom being at present attached to the Fish Commission steamer Fish Hawk, in the vicinity of Boston and Cape Cod.

The marriage of Miss Emma Jester, daughter of Mrs. William Jester, to Mr. Albert Frederick Haas took place Tuesday afternoon at the residence of the bride's mother on Main avenue. Only relatives were present to witness the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. George W. Quick, D. D., pastor of the Second Baptist Church. A bridal luncheon followed. Mr. and Mrs. Haas left on steamer General for a trip to Niagara Falls and other places and on their return will make their home in Newport. The bride's going-away costume was of light blue broadcloth, with a large picture hat.

Among the guests was a brother of the groom, Midshipman E. Gladstone Haas, attached to battleship North Dakota, which is at the Boston navy yard in preparation for its first cruise.

"BE WISE."

There is no time in the year 1910 that coal can be bought as low as at the present time, therefore it is good policy and true economy to lay in as much coal as will be needed through next winter.

Dollars Can be Saved by Doing So.

Besides saving money coal is in better condition during the months of June and July than at any other months of the year, and those that take advantage of the low prices and put in the winter coal NOW have the BEST coal and LOWEST prices of the year. Try some of the beautiful coal in the yards of
